MUSSOLINI REFUSES TO SEE PAPAL NUNCIO HALTING ITALO-VATICAN PEACE PARLEY

Prosecutors and Criminals Linked--Wickersham

BOARD DECLARES POLITICS SHACKLES JUSTICE IN U. S.

Divorce of Federal District Attorneys' Appointments From Political List Urged as First of Five Combative Measures

FAILURE TO CONVICT LAID TO OFFICERS

Campaign Donations Dubbed License Paid to Violate Law; Local Conditions Are Blamed.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(UP)—Prosecutors are indirectly in league with crime through political affiliations in some places, the Wickersham commission charged tonight in the fourth of its series of reports on law enforcement.

Reorganization of the existing system was proposed, through five specific recommendations as follows:

1. Elimination of politics in appointment of federal district attorneys.

2. Better selection of state's attorneys, longer terms and better pay for assistants.

3. Organization of local bar associations to insure competency of those engaged in the federal courts.

4. Systematized control of prosecutions in each state under a director of public prosecutions.

5. Provision for legal interrogation of accused persons under suitable safeguards.

General Indictment.

Far outstripping these corrective plans in significance was the general indictment of the present prosecuting system, especially against the offices of state's attorneys. The report traced what it called a connecting link through politics between the prosecutor and the criminal. It offered this corrupt connection as the cause for its accompanying statistics showing that few of persons arrested are being convicted.

Only four or five out of every 100 prosecutions result in convictions in New York or Chicago, the report asserted. Cincinnati's percentage was 17, but Milwaukee and Baltimore were notable exceptions, 60 per cent being convicted in Milwaukee.

"Criminal justice and local politics have an intimate connection which aggravates the bad features of state prosecution already considered," the report stated at one point.

"Notoriously this connection between the prosecutor's office and politics is the bane of prosecution.

"There is a close connection between corrupt local political organizations and criminal organizations. The former exploit and the latter organize law-breaking and vice.

Ability Minor Consideration.

"Campaign funds are derived from what amounts to licensed violations of the law.

"Under political conditions which obtain in large cities, except for occasional outbursts of popular indignation, prosecutors are likely to be selected with reference to the exigencies of political organizations rather than with reference to the tasks of law enforcement. . . .

"It has happened frequently that the prosecuting attorney withdraws wholly from the courts and devotes himself to the political side and sensational investigatory functions of his office, leaving the work of prosecution wholly to his assistants.

"Between the desire for publicity and the fear of offending those who control local politics, the temptation is strong to fall into an ineffective perfunctory routine for everyday cases with spectacular treatment of sensational cases."

It is not through jury acquittals that the criminal escapes punishments, the report continued. Few felony prosecutions reach the jury stage. In Chicago it is 3.8 per cent;

RUSSELL'S BOARD TO MEET TUESDAY

Committee Will Stay in Session Until General Assembly Gathers.

Five members of Governor-elect Russell's special reorganization committee will return to the capitol Tuesday and, except for week-end visits to their homes, remain in Atlanta the intervening period to complete the report and recommendations to the regular session of the general assembly meeting June 24.

While an effort will be made to get reorganization bills started early in the session, members said Sunday, it is unlikely that any committee bill will find its way into the legislative hopper until after the inaugural address of the governor-elect on June 27.

Suggestions of probable changes in the administrative machinery of the state, made in a preliminary report issued Saturday, include:

Consolidation of all tax collecting agencies under one department head.

An increase in the staff of the attorney general to cut down large fees now being paid for extra legal services.

Merger of the insurance department, securities commission and banking department with the state treasury.

Consolidation of the fish and game, forestry and geology divisions into one department.

Provision for appointment of several heads now being elected by the people.

Putting more teeth into laws affecting the printing department.

Placing the Georgia public service commission "under direct responsibility to the people" by providing for its support out of general treasury funds.

GROUP TO DISCUSS FINANCES OF CITY

Council Group To Meet With Legislators and Map Fund-Raising.

A meeting of the finance committee of city council and the legislators from DeKalb and Fulton counties will be held at 10 o'clock this morning to discuss an attempt to raise $1,666,000 to insure the operation of all departments of the borough government for the remainder of the year.

At the same time attention will be given to Alderman J. Charlie Murphy's suggestion that the financial readjustment of Atlanta's public school system can be made permanent only by completely divorcing it from the borough government.

The conclusion that the school system must be handled independently was reached after a meeting of the administration leaders and officials of the Atlanta Federation of Trades called by A. Steve Nance, president of the organization, Friday.

Doumergue Attends Rites Honoring Dead

PARIS, June 7.—(AP)—President Gaston Doumergue marked the last Sunday of his term of office today by attending an impressive service at the Invalides at which the bodies of 16 of the higher commanders of the wartime army and navy of France were reinterred.

Among the bodies transferred to the Invalides were those of Marshal Maunoury, victor of the Oureq in 1914, and of Generals Nivelle, Langle, Becary, Lanresac, Humbert, Maudhuy and Mangin.

$3,000,000 FIRE SWEEPS NORFOLK BUSINESS AREA

Firemen, Aided by Marines, Sailors, Bring Flames Under Control After Long Night Fight.

NORFOLK, Va., June 8.—(Monday)—(AP)—A three-million-dollar fire following an explosion on an oil barge swept the wharves and seven blocks in the business district last night, burning for seven hours before being checked shortly after midnight today.

The combined fire fighting forces of the Hampton Roads area and the assistance of hundreds of sailors and marines in fighting the fire and maintaining order; and a steady rain which began to fall helped materially in bringing the flames under control.

Estimate of Damage.

Major C. J. Calrow, member of the city planning commission, estimated that damage already done would amount to not less than $3,000,000. Loss of stock and machinery of the American Peanut corporation alone was placed by company officials at $1,000,000. The Victoria hotel, of 200 room capacity, was razed, but so far as could be ascertained all occupants escaped without injury except one woman guest, who was treated for shock and hysteria.

Eight persons, four of them firemen, were injured sufficiently to be taken to hospitals for treatment and more than a score of others received attention at ambulances stationed in the fire zone. Prisoners confined in a jail, which at one time appeared to be in the path of the flames, raised a clamor and plans were made to remove them under a marine guard, but the fire was stopped before it reached the building and they were not moved.

A strong wind, which later brought rain to the relief of the weary fire fighters, hampered their efforts from the time the blaze started. The fire spread quickly from the barge to the wharf and neighboring business houses, sending up a great pall of black smoke which later reflected the glare of the flames and attracted

PORTO RICAN RAPS AMERICAN RULE

"Unionist" Party Revives With New Vigor Demand for Independence.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, June 7.—(AP)—Reviving with new vigor its demand for the independence of Porto Rico from the United States, the party which has been known for more than 25 years as "unionist" tonight continued its convention held for the purpose of modifying its platform.

The convention was presided over by Senator Antonio R. Barcelo, who has been for many years a dominant political figure in Porto Rico.

It was still undetermined tonight whether the party's platform will include independence as its sole aim or whether a compromise might be reached.

Use of Name Refused.

By a recent decision of the Porto Rico supreme court the party has been denied use of its old name, "unionist," in the next election.

A new name and some changes in the platform have been proposed for adoption. The present convention was called after the insistence of Senator Barcelo that independence was the only possible political goal for the island.

In addition to the court decision, there has been the possibility that the city government of San Juan might pass from the control of the party under the new commission form of government recently approved by Governor Roosevelt.

Scores American Rule.

In his keynote speech, Senator Barcelo denounced American rule in Porto Rico in scathing terms, asserting that imperialism had now reached such a stage as to be a complete denial of the nation's boasted democracy and "more humiliating than the shameless tyranny of the ancient Caesars."

After 33 years of American administration, Senator Barcelo said, Porto Rico is bound more than ever to an oppressive colonial system in which American tariffs "forced the island to buy at prices which were convenient to national industry."

"Our people paid $90,000,000" he said, "with their blood, to favor American products although the American tariff system in Porto Rico favors only foreign capital. Our condition is worse than that of the medieval serfs."

Dr. Jacobs' Brother Dies in Carolina

Russia Enslaved 5 Millions, Duchess of Atholl Declares

LONDON, June 7.—(AP)—The Duchess of Atholl today told a radio audience there are several millions of men, women and children performing forced labor in soviet Russia because of the speed with which the five-year plan is being pushed.

The duchess, who formerly was parliamentary secretary to the board of education and is high in the councils of the conservative party, based her opinions on the recent "blue book" of the British foreign office, in which official soviet government decrees were printed, and more recent ordinances published in the Russian press.

The talk was the first of a series of three which the Columbia Broadcasting System will send to American radio audiences. Reports from the United States said it was clearly received there.

"In February, 1930, a special decree ordered the wholesale expropriation of the possessions of the better-off persons and their transportation with their families to wherever their labor was most required," the duchess said.

"It is estimated that over 5,000,000 persons were forcibly deported under this decree, chiefly to the forests of the far north of Russia.

"Many of them arrived there in the winter and had no houses until they had built them for themselves.

"History, I think, records no such wholesale uprooting and banishment of peaceful fellow-citizens as this.

"This Kulak decree was followed by the publication of a code laying down regulations for the labor in penal camps of persons sentenced to inuprisonment for more than three years. The labor of these prisoners also was to be employed in a manner that would best yield a profit. Their rations were to depend on the work done."

The duchess discussed a decree of last February which she said empowered village soviets to undertake as a self-imposed task a piece of work in their communities. A mere majority at an open meeting could impose the task on the village, she said, and those who refused to do their allotted share would be given a severe fine or have their goods confiscated.

"This decree spurred on village minorities to enslave the communities of which they formed a part," she declared.

"Even women of the aboriginal population of the east are liable to conscription and forced labor has covered every conceivable category of persons in the vast soviet union," Duchess Atholl said.

"That this enslavement is due to the five-year plan is unquestionable," she concluded. "That the shaping and execution of the plan is being assisted by foreign experts, foreign credits and foreign purchases is further undenied.

"Canada has taken action to clear herself completely of responsibility in the matter. Are countries, such as the United States and Great Britain, both of which have made sacrifices in the past in the name of freedom, satisfied to do less?"

LOSS OF PROPERTY FACED BY CAPONE

Civil Liens To Be Filed By Government Against Gangster's Holdings.

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP)—"Scarface Al" Capone, gang chief, faces loss of his huge property holdings as well as his liberty in the government proceedings against him for evasion of income tax.

The government indicted him Friday, claiming $215,083 tax, and today Robert E. Neely, acting collector of internal revenue, said civil liens will be filed against all Capone property, wherever found, to collect that amount. The lien actions will be started next week in the various revenue districts where Capone holdings may be located, Neely said.

Besides Capone's Chicago and Miami Beach (Fla.) real estate holdings, Neely said he understands there is property near Eagle River, Wis., and the huge Santa Margarita ranch, including 35 miles of ocean front between Los Angeles and San Diego, Cal. The civil liens will cover safe deposit boxes and other personal holdings, Neely said. He declined to say whether the government has a list of Capone's boxes.

The indictment returned Friday charged that Capone's income between 1924 and 1928 totaled at least $1,038,654.

Capone surrendered at once, and was released in $50,000 bail. Government prosecutors promised an early trial, in an effort to clean up the case by the end of the summer.

Ralph Capone, Al's brother, is under sentence of three years in jail and $11,500 fine for evasion of income tax. He has appealed. Terry Druggan, notorious beer baron, who pleaded guilty to tax evasion conditional on the outcome of Ralph's appeal, was subjected to a search, seizure and sale of assets similar to that promised for Al. A number of other gangsters, including many close to Capone, also are under sentence or in jail for attempting to evade the income tax laws.

Two Killed, Many Hurt As Communists Clash

CHEMNITZ, Germany, June 7.—(AP)—Two "nazis" (national socialists) were fatally wounded and a number of persons were injured in frequent clashes with communists during the national socialist party's two-day meeting here.

Some 35,000 members of the organization including Adolph Hitler, its leader, attended the meeting. Prince August Wilhelm son of the former kaiser, also was present.

Police opened fire against the communists trying to escape over roofs and fences, wounding seven. Police finally shut off the entire district and arrested 70 of the disturbers.

MRS. ARMOR HITS CANADA'S SYSTEM OF LIQUOR CONTROL

TORONTO, Ont., June 7.—(UP)—Canadian government liquor control systems were attacked by Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, Macon, Ga., W. C. T. U. prohibtion campaigner, tonight in Walmer Road Baptist church here as "just as bad as if the government licensed thieves."

"Children living today will see the time when men and women will speak with bated breath and horror of the time when the government upheld the sale of liquor," she said.

"The mightiest moral combat of the ages is now raging in the United States over the liquor question, but the United States will hold to her law."

She again charged as earlier during the world W. C. T. U. conference which started Thursday, that "Newspapers have been bought up with paid propaganda" to propagandize against prohibition.

Assails Liquor Dealers.

She charged "liquor dealers and men and women who had money invested in brewery and distillery stocks are willing to sink the souls of every man, woman and child in the United States and in the rest of the world in iniquity for the dollars they can get out of it."

She said determination, education, organization and consecration were most needed in the fight for continuing prohibition.

"The United States didn't go dry because we had a spasm of piety, but because our faithful teachers, obeying the law, learned the nature of alcohol and its effect on the human system. You can repeal a law but you can't repeal a conviction.

"Cocktail Not Stylish."

"You young people must learn that there's nothing up-to-date and stylish about a cocktail. The new up-to-

GERMANS, BRITISH WILL CO-OPERATE

Reparations Not Mentioned Directly in Communique Issued.

BY LOUIS LOCHNER.

CHEQUERS, Buckinghamshire, England, June 7.—(AP)—Promising each other to "deal with the present crisis in close collaboration," Germany's and England's foreign ministers and premiers today finished their two-day conference at the country home of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald here.

Every phase of the world's economic situation was discussed thoroughly during the week-end with frankness and openness.

After Chancellor Heinrich Bruening and Foreign Minister Julius Curtius departed for London a communique was issued to the press. It did not mention the question of reparations although Herr Bruening is understood to have asked MacDonald's assistance in sounding out Germany's creditors, including the United States, regarding postponement of some of the heavy reparations payments.

Communique.

The communique read:

"During the week-end the German chancellor, Bruening, and German foreign minister, Dr. Curtius, visited Chequers. The British ministers present were the prime minister, the secretary of state for foreign affairs and the president of the board of trade.

"On Sunday the prime minister and Miss MacDonald gave a luncheon at which were present the German ambassador and Baroness Von Neurath, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Alexander, the governor of the Bank of England; Mr. and Mrs. George Bernard Shaw, Sir Robert Van Sittart, Sir Clive and Lady Wigram, Miss Sheila MacDonald, Miss Byrcets, William Stock, 37, of Passaic, was arrested as a co-conspirator with Fedor. Police say Fedor confessed.

Mrs. De Leeuw and the two men were charged with conspiracy to murder. Fedor, a chauffeur, also was charged with highway robbery, extortion and attempt to kill.

WOMAN AT MACON ON TRIAL FOR LIFE

Mrs. Powers, Once Sentenced To Die, Faces Second Jury Today.

MACON, Ga., June 7.—(AP)—Weakened by her advanced age and her confinement in the Bibb county jail for more than two years, Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Powers, 73 years old, white-haired, will be carried into the courtroom Monday morning for her second arraignment and trial on a murder charge growing out of the fatal shooting of James W. Parks, 18, on the night of May 27, 1929.

It will be the first time Mrs. Powers has left the confines of the county jail since her first trial in October, 1929. Her removal tomorrow, however, will not take her from the building in which she has spent the two years of confinement. It only will be a drop of the elevator from the fourth floor of the courthouse—where the jail is located—to the second floor and the courtroom.

"I don't know whether I will be able to live through it or not," she told a newspaper reporter several days ago. "I am so weak, and it looks as if I will die," she added.

She said officers will have to aid her in getting to the courtroom.

At the first trial Mrs. Powers was condemned to die in the electric chair. The Georgia supreme court granted her a new trial because of the court's failure to charge the law of circumstantial evidence. A charge on that subject was thought unnecessary at the time, however, because the state's principal witness, Sheriff James R. Hicks Jr., testified concerning a confession the woman is said to have

The big senior class and Georgia Tech faculty Sunday attended the Peachtree Christian church, where the pastor, Dr. L. O. Bricker, delivered the baccalaureate address. His subject was "Jesus, the Great Experimenter." He was introduced to the seniors by Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of Georgia Tech.

Just preceding the commencement program this morning city, county and state officials will take part with Dr. Brittain in the dedication of the building housing the Daniel Guggenheim school of aeronautics. This ceremony will be held in front of the North Avenue side of the building.

Continuing the aviation feature of the day, Edward Pearson Warner, editor of aviation, and former assistant secretary of the navy for aeronautics, will make the commencement address. In the commencement proces-

IL DUCE'S MOVE SAID IN REVENGE FOR PAPAL REBUKE

Pope Pius Reported To Have Denied Audience to Italian Ambassador Last Week in Brief But Caustic Message.

MONARCH MAY TRY TO SETTLE DISPUTE

Unofficial Peace Negotiations Continue Although Breach Between Two Leaders Widens.

BY FRANCIS REA

ROME, June 7.—(UP)—Official negotiations for settlement of the Italo-Vatican dispute were suspended today after Premier Benito Mussolini declined to receive the representative of the holy see, Nuncio Mgr. Francesco Borgongini-Duca.

The action of the premier apparently was retaliation for the refusal of the pope to receive the Italian ambassador, Count Devecchi, last week.

Unofficial negotiations for a settlement of the dispute, growing out of the closing of Catholic Young Men's clubs on charges of political activity, continued, however, and it was learned that King Victor Emmanuel was determined to make every effort to avert a break in diplomatic relations.

King Takes Hand.

The determination of the king to bring the negotiations to a successful conclusion was said to have been indicated by the appointment of Luigi Federzoni, president of the senate, to represent Italy in the unofficial conversations. Reliable sources said Marquis Francesco Pacelli was representing the Vatican.

The refusal of the pope to receive Ambassador Devecchi occurred last week, when it was reported that the ambassador went to the Vatican with a request for an audience. He was received by the master of the papal household, Monsignor Caccia-Dominioni, who conveyed his request to Pope Pius.

The pope was understood to have replied:

"Tell the ambassador we have no communication to make and no communication to receive."

Subsequently Mussolini refused to receive the nuncio and designated Federzoni to conduct the unofficial negotiations.

The king was represented as being anxious to heal the breach and, in any event, to avoid a break in diplomatic relations with the holy see. This was threatened as a result of the failure of the fascist government to reply to the requests of the holy see for an explanation of the failure of fascist police to suppress immediately demonstrations hostile to the pope, as provided in the concordat.

Friend of King.

Federzoni is a friend of the king of many years' standing and also is acceptable to the holy see. The king was said to be personally convinced that the controversy does not contain insoluble points and that the proper action will bring a settlement.

Federzoni formerly was head of the nationalist party, which merged with the fascist party. He has been credited with a prominent part in preparing the ground work for the Lateran treaty, by which the sovereignty of the pope was recognized by Italy.

Well-informed sources confirmed that the pope has resolved to issue a white book, explaining the Vatican's position, and to recall the holy see's nuncio if the negotiations do not end satisfactorily.

Meanwhile, the Polish government was understood to have informally sounded out the Vatican and Italy to determine whether its friendly mediation would be welcome. It generally was expected the offer would be declined.

The Vatican will dispatch a third

TREASURY DEFICIT WILL BE REDUCED

1930-'31 Expenditures Fall Below Estimate; Notes Called.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—The treasury's plan of funding its maturing debt advanced another step today with an announcement from Secretary Mellon that all 3 1-2 per cent treasury notes of series 0-1930-32 have been called for redemption on December 15.

Outstanding notes of this issue, the secretary said, total $451,000,000 of the original $607,399,650 issued on January 16, 1928.

At the same time, the treasury announced that a total of $818,000,000 to $820,000,000 of the 3 1-8 per cent treasury bonds offered for public subscription last Monday had been accepted from the $6,325,000,000 subscriptions received.

The bonds, which will be for 18 years, will provide funds for retiring maturing treasury certificates and furnish funds needed to operate the government.

While the treasury had a deficit of $1,068,675,335 on June 4, indications were that expenditures would not mount to the $4,345,000,000 recently estimated by President Hoover for the year. On June 4 the expenditures since July 1 were $3,890,173,760. It was believed the expenditures for the remainder of the month of June would not be $454,000,000.

While the treasury still expects the deficit will be in the neighborhood of $900,000,000 it will require unexpected expenses to send the total disbursements for the year much above $4,000,000,000. Indications are that the tax collections for the month will be about $290,000,000, bringing the total collections for the fiscal year to $3,111,000,000 plus approximately $90,000,000 in interest on war debts which debtor nations will pay on June 15 and which can be devoted to the general fund.

No hint has been received from any of the debtor nations that they would ask postponement of their payments on principal and interest, which this year is $51,000,000 and $184,000,000 respectively.

The nations which owe this government war debts have the right under the refunding treaties to postpone any payment upon 90 days notice of intention to do so. The postponement may be for two years.

NEW TAXATION SOURCES ARE URGED BY CARLTON

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., June 7.—(AP)—While Florida's legislators enjoyed a three-day recess after closing a turbulent sixty-day session and formally opening a twenty-day extra session, Governor Doyle E. Carlton today issued a statement calling the state's finance and taxation problem a practical one—a problem which is economic, not political.

The problem was summed up for the legislators by the chief executive in his call for the extraordinary session, which he limited to consideration of state, county and municipal finance and taxation questions.

He said real estate should be relieved of excessive taxation, schools should be given funds to back up appropriations already made to insure a standard eight-month term in all counties, new sources of revenue should be uncovered, and all taxable property—real and personal, tangible and intangible—should be placed on the tax books and made to pay its share of the burden.

As the extra session was formally opened and then recessed for three days, revenue bills designed to bring in a total of $21,000,000 during the next two years were introduced and placed on senate and house calendars or referred to special committees for study.

Widespread Abuses Exist Under Dole, Writer Reveals

This is the seventh of a series of articles on the dole, written after several weeks of investigation in Great Britain. The series presents an unprejudiced discussion of the dole, and an analysis of its disadvantages and its benefits.

BY CYRIL ARTHUR PLAYER.

LONDON, June 7—Whenever there is something to be got for nothing, there will be found persons to take advantage of it. In a scheme of such magnitude as unemployment insurance in Great Britain, liberally expanded to meet a prolonged emergency, abuses are inevitable.

The extent of the abuse, estimated in cash, is impossible to determine. A labor official in charge of important research for the general council of the trades union congress set it at $5,000,000. It could be at best a guess, and a guess limited by a troublesome definition of what is an "abuse."

The writer, on the basis of conversations with representatives of all views of the problem, and on a definition of "abuse" which seems to him conservative, would set the figure at triple that estimate, at least.

Important Item.

It is clear, then, that the "abuses" form an important financial item and a more important social problem, but that the heavy expenditure is due to principles of the scheme, as now in operation, and not to any single factor involving wastage of money on the unworthy.

There never has been any "means test" for unemployment benefit. True to the original plan, qualification depends (setting aside the matter of contributions) on the length of time during which there has been unemployment; it is never based on a minimum earned weekly income. The writer has discussed this point with many authorities, one of whom hazarded the thought that such a plan must be exploded, but most of the others considered the system impracticable.

The labor ministry itself, which is by no means blind to new ideas, sees "a number of difficulties, some of them administrative (for example, that of ascertaining the precise amounted earned.) There are others of a more general nature, such as the effect such a system might have on the level of wages."

Theoretically the applicant for extended benefit must prove:

1. That he is normally employed in insurable employment, and will normally seek to obtain such employment.
2. That in normal times insurable employment suited to his capacities would be likely to be available to him.
3. That he is making every reasonable effort to obtain employment suited to his capacities and is willing to accept such employment.

Difficult to Apply.

Obviously all these tests are difficult to apply; in fact, the discovery of an effective "test" vexes the soul of the administrator of the benefit. The third test is psychological, for it is extremely difficult to decide whether any particular individual is genuinely seeking work, unless you are in a position to offer him a specific job for which he is suited. A miner, for example, may demur to an offer to be a butcher's assistant on the ground that he is without experience, and he may say he was never raised to be a bricklayer.

A man whose interest in work perhaps is largely academic might consider that he had made a "reasonable effort" to get work within his scope if he should stand at his front door on the chance someone might come along and ask him to hold a horse. The degree of "genuineness" a search for work is something in a man's mind; there is no way of measuring it from the outside.

Whereas the test for health insurance benefit is a doctor's certificate, and the test for old age pension a birth certificate, the test for eligibility to unemployment benefit, now that the bars are down and the original plan "extended," is more or less a problem in mind reading. Ronald C. Davison, author of a fine book on "The Unemployed," states correctly that an "almost theological discussion" rages around this topic.

The importance of a "waiting period" before benefit can be claimed has been explained in a preceding article, on the basis that the first few days of individual unemployment are easiest for the worker to support and the most expensive for the state (or the fund) to pay for. The waiting period is six days.

Following that, the rule governing continuity of unemployment sufficient to make a man eligible for benefit is this:

Any three days of unemployment, whether consecutive or not, within a period of six consecutive days, are treated as a continuous period of unemployment, and any two such continuous periods separated by a period of not more than six weeks are treated as one continuous period of unemployment.

This weakness in the system has been soundly abused, frequently with connivance between employer and employed, as the more days the worker can go on the dole the fewer contributions have to be paid in. Also, the system permits the work to be shared out among more workmen.

The notorious instance, admitted by labor spokesmen, has been that of the coal-trimmers in Wales. There were 1,400 of them. The coal trimmer gets from $25 to $35 for a twenty-four hour day. By having these men work two or three days and going on the dole the rest of the week, the work went around among a lot of trimmers. Of course, this is an exceptional case, and coal-trimming is more or less sporadic. But no man earning $75 for three days' work needed an allowance from the taxpayer to reconcile him to a vacation the rest of the week.

Then there is the professional football player who is paid $32.50 a week and officially "unemployed" four days a week. There are the girls and women who have a standing job as week-end assistants in stores, and, thinks Sir A. W. Watson, "have probably been deterred from entering domestic service by the attractiveness of such employment combined with unemployment benefit for the rest of the week."

There are the sandwich-men and bill distributors who work only one day a week, and, week by week, come on the fund for five days. There are steel-workers earning $32.50 for four days; dye industry workers earning $5 a shift, four days a week; slaughter house workers earning $25 in four days—and all of them going on the dole for the idle days.

There is no disposition to contend that the standard of living for many of these, even with their wages, is luxurious, but obviously such instances as have been mentioned are quite outside the purpose of the benefit. Moreover, probably 1,000,000 of those claiming benefit are receiving it at the public expense, without any built-up contributions, while the other 1,000,000 are receiving merely a quid pro quo, a benefit contracted for and steadily subscribed to.

In the case of the former the benefit is a dole and a misplaced dole where the employment, even is broken, is consistent. In the case of the latter, now a sad and somewhat resentful minority, it is a despairing but sincere adherence to the fundamental principle of compulsory insurance against unemployment; a spreading out of a portion of the industrial wage bill to cover the limited interruptions of wage-earning to which most wage-earners are exposed.

"We are," exclaims Harold Cox, banker, "seeing a large mass of the population ceasing to be individuals and degenerating into cadgers, ever holding out their hands for more."

The labor ministry denies any pauperization and it is wholly unfair to deduce from these examples that the British have become a nation of loafers. The working population is more than 12,000,000. But the abuses are important for obvious reasons. The men who trim coal three days a week and trim the taxpayer the rest of the week, so exhausting their energies that they have to be publicly aided, are significant, but a minority, and a small one, no matter what form the graft takes. And it is nationwide.

Sir Henry Keith, representing the convention of royal burghs, tells of abuses in Scotland. He speaks of young men drawing the dole who are the best customers of the local billiard saloon; of miners who refused work at $8 a week because they could get $7 a week for doing nothing; and of the inevitable young married women, "with no real intention of looking for work," who registered and drew benefit.

"The abolition of the 'genuinely seeking work' condition," Sir Henry says, "is primarily responsible for the large addition of married women on the registers."

One result of the system, so far as it makes it nice for women with any sort of part-time occupation, or a husband, to round out their resources, is a great dearth in domestic servants. In the past, domestic service was an honored and even heritable occupation. Frequently there existed a curious relationship which permitted to the employer a certain number of gratifying little snobberies and to the servant an enduring security through life and old age.

Domestic servants, since the occupation has only negligible unemployment hazards, are outside the unemployment benefit system. Therefore, the daughters of starving mining families, for example, who are hopefully placed in domestic service, soon discover that there are ways whereby one may work, nicely dressed, in a store or even a saloon part time, and "go on the good old dole" for pocket money.

No, this is not a nation of loafers, nor of small cheats. Human nature is having a hard time to meet the test, and over all of the situation hovers the loosening mood of emergency. After all, this privation has been going on for 10 years!

Let us talk to the employers, and then gather up and sort suggested solutions.

CHICAGOANS DISCUSS FUTURE OF HUGE BANK

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP)—The future of the Foreman-State National bank and the Foreman-State Trust and Savings bank, third largest in Chicago, was being mapped out tonight at a closed conference of Chicago banking leaders, directors and large stockholders.

Major figures in the city's world of finance had been gathered at the meetings since this morning, with the announced intention of bringing about a reorganization. Hours passed and there was only the announcement: "Nothing yet."

Reporters, clustered in the lobby of the bank, were told that Arthur Reynolds, chairman, and James R. Leavell, president of the Continental-Illinois bank, largest in the city; Frederick H. Rawson, chairman, and Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National-First Union group, second largest, were among the conferees.

Chicago papers heard two versions of how the reorganization would be brought about, both unauthenticated by any official announcement.

The first was that about $10,000,000 of new capital would be poured into the bank, to give it a total capital of $25,000,000.

A. D. Lasker, William Wrigley Jr., John Hertz and members of the Foreman family, active directors of the Foreman banks, supplied $7,500,000 of the new capital. Other Chicago banks, banded together to furnish the remainder.

The second theory was that some other Chicago bank might merge the Foreman banks into its own organization—probably the First National.

Prominent bankers gave the assurance that whatever procedure was followed, depositors would not lose a cent. The last official statement of condition showed a little less than $200,000,000 in deposits March 25.

The present capitalization of the Foreman-State banks is more than $30,000,000. The institution had total deposits in March of $158,000,000. The last official statement of condition showed combined resources March 25 of $242,585,165.

EUROPE IS SHAKEN BY EARTH TREMORS

England, France, Belgium and Norway Also Rocked by Night Shocks

LONDON, June 7.—(AP)—Several earth tremors in England, France, Norway and Belgium early today alarmed inhabitants, but did little material damage and caused no loss of life.

At many points persons rushed from their beds to the streets half-clad. They remained outside for some time talking excitedly about the disturbance.

The tremors were felt throughout England, and in part of Scotland, Wales, the Channel islands and the Isle of Wight. Northern France and southern Norway were affected, but Ireland escaped.

J. J. Shaw, seismologist at the Wes Bromwich observatory, said the shock which started there at 1:26 a. m., was one of the severest ever recorded in England. He reported the tremors continued for from five to seven minutes and then gradually diminished. They were particularly strong in the midlands.

The tremors were accompanied in some regions by rumbling noises and in other places was preceded by a severe thunderstorm. An oppressive calm was noted elsewhere.

Many chimneys crashed to the ground and buildings were felt to sway. Furniture was moved in strange fashions and crockery was thrown to the floor.

Night workers said the ground was felt to move gently. The floors of newspaper offices in Fleet street moved distinctly, and tables shook for nearly a minute, and then all was quiet.

A water main was broken by the tremors in eastern London and cellars of buildings in the vicinity were flooded.

The pier master at Southen-on-Sea, at the mouth of the Thames in Essex, reported he was awakened by being thrown from his bed. He said he rushed outside and saw the sea in an upheaval, and boats bobbing about in a turmoil.

The roof of a building in Hull collapsed and the gable end of another fell out, exposing the interior.

Brussels reported tremors were noticed throughout Belgium and caused much excitement but no damage.

Two shocks were felt at Cherbourg at an interval of five minutes. There was little damage however, except for cracks in houses there.

THREE WOMEN HELD AFTER DEPUTY IS SHOT

THOMASVILLE, Ga., June 7.—Deputy Sheriff H. A. White, of Sheriff Gordon Davis' office in Thomas county, is in a serious condition at Archbold Memorial hospital here, shot through the chest before daylight this morning when trying to make an arrest.

With deputies Jim Stewart and John Hough he went to the home of Joe Groves in the Boston district of the county to arrest Groves on a warrant charging burglary. White approached the front of the house while the other deputies went to the rear. When White called a woman cracked the door open and asked what was wanted. Told of the warrant she asked that it be read. And almost immediately following this request a shot from within the house hit White. He walked some 30 steps and fell.

His companions rushed him to Boston, where an ambulance was called, and he was brought to the hospital here.

The other deputies returned to the house but found only the wife, mother and sister of Groves there. It was said a loaded pistol was found in the house but it had not been fired and the officers think the person who shot White escaped while they were getting the latter started for the hospital.

Spanish-American War Memorial Unveiled Sunday at Savannah

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 7.—(AP)—Veterans of the Spanish-American War began their three-day state encampment here today with unveiling at 6 o'clock this evening of a monument as a memorial to the men of the 1898 conflict.

The monument is the figure of a soldier of that period in campaign uniform. It is upon a base of granite, located in Park extension, and faces south. It completes monuments erected here as memorials to every war of consequence. The last previous memorial, Victory drive, which honors the men of the World War, lies farther south.

Colonel A. R. Lawton, who commanded the Second Georgia regiment of infantry in the Spanish-American War, presided at the unveiling exercises. Mrs. Mildred V. Rhodes, president of the woman's auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans, made the presentation address and General William L. Grayson, past national commander, and Gordon Saussy, former mayor of Savannah, accepted it.

Miss Belle Greer and Miss Elizabeth Stewart held United States and Georgia flags about the monument, while Miss Virginia Stewart and Miss Lois Kinney pulled the strings which unveiled the memorial. All patriotic organizations attended the exercises.

This evening at 8:30 memorial services were held in the municipal auditorium, the principal address being by Rev. E. F. Cook, departmental chaplain.

The encampment continues tomorrow and Tuesday. A large number of delegates are here, all state camps being well represented. Captain S. N. Harris is state commander.

Monday morning at the joint meeting of the veterans and auxiliary the first cross of military service, an honor conferred by Daughters of the Confederacy upon those descendants of Confederate soldiers who fought in the Spanish-American War, will be presented Captain S. N. Harris, Savannah, state commander.

The second such medal will be presented Mrs. Mildred Rhodes of Athens. Captain Harris' father, Stephen Raymond Harris, fought in the War Between the States, and Mrs. Rhodes is given her medal because her father, the late Carl A. Von Der Leith, was a member of Company G, Second Georgia Volunteers, in the Confederate army. The presentation will be by Mrs. J. J. A passing automobile was hailed and Miss Sinclair was taken to the Macon hospital. Physicians said she suffered severe lacerations of the scalp and bruises. Her conditions was not serious, it was said. Her companions, the driver of the car and a young woman whose name was not given at the hospital, received minor cuts and bruises.

ATLANTA, GA., JUNE 8, 1931.

COTTON HEADS THE LIST.

During the past year the country has been considerably agitated over the low price of wheat and the huge surplus of that commodity for which there is no sale. Conference after conference has been held to discuss the problem. A member of the farm board was sent to Europe to confer with representatives of wheat growing nations, and newspaper comment has been of such a nature as to engender a species of frenzy out of the dilemma.

The majority of our business men have come to regard wheat as the principal cash crop of the nation, and any sort of trouble with it is a national calamity.

Wheat is not the principal cash farm crop; it is outranked by several items, even by the lowly barnyard cackler and her contribution to the nation's wealth.

According to compilations made by the bureau of agricultural economics of the United States department of agriculture, practically 60 per cent of farmers' cash income from agricultural products, based on a five-year average, 1925-1929, was received from cotton, milk, hogs, cattle and poultry products.

The five-year average for cotton lint and seed was $1,460,107,000; milk, $1,453,646,000; hogs, $1,292,353,000; cattle, $1,006,142,000; poultry and eggs, $813,445,000; wheat, $790,129,000.

We do not assume to minimize the dilemma regarding wheat. It is serious; but if business interests become hysterical over the present status of wheat and its effect on the middle west, what will be their attitude when they fully realize the consequences that will result from the program already set in motion for the southeast to raise its own food and feed, and stop importing from the north milk products, hogs, cattle, meats, poultry and eggs, which outclass wheat as a cash crop of that section?

The mounting supremacy of the southeast in agriculture is assured if it will increase this live-at-home program to the point where it not only stops importing food and feed, but becomes a contender for the markets of the north!

The south's cotton and cotton seed already head the list of cash agricultural productions with the striking sum of $1,460,107,000, and its program for the future comprises greatly increased production of dairy products, hogs, cattle and poultry, which rank next in order. Increased production of live stock means also increased production of small grains, including oats and corn. In addition to this southeastern farmers are learning that they can raise good crops of wheat, the production of which is doubling every year. Small grain crops have increased to such an extent that many farmers are purchasing reaper-thresher combines to handle the work quickly and at low cost. Sixty-five of these labor-saving machines were reported in operation in South Carolina last week, and a proportionate increase is indicated for Georgia and other southeastern states.

The southeast is the natural agricultural section of the nation. It has the climate, the rainfall and the soil. The one-crop system having failed, the southeast is now going in for diversified farming. It will grow in wealth from year to year as the practice increases, and will be the first section of the nation to recover from the agricultural dilemma that has perplexed business for the past few years.

It will soon be the greatest market in the country for labor-saving farm machinery and improved farming implements, the most up-to-date farming accessories, and the very latest of conveniences and luxuries for the farm home.

And with prosperity on the farms will come prosperity to the towns and cities of the entire southeast.

CHINA ERUPTS AGAIN.

Reports from China indicate that the native press has been thrown into an uproar following a recent comment by the Japanese government on the question of the removal of the legations from Pekin to Nanking, a matter about which the Kuomintang government is particularly sensitive.

In arguing the inadvisability of such action by the powers, the spokesman for the Japanese government takes the position that "while there is no reason to believe that the capital of China will not remain at Nanking, equally there is no conclusive proof that it will not return to Pekin at some future time."

Which is a diplomatic way of saying that until the national government of China is established on a sounder basis it will be better for the legations to stay in Pekin, where they are grouped together and can be protected against such uprisings as the Boxer revolution, when the life of every foreign resident of Pekin was in imminent peril. Had not the legations then been so located as to make a joint defense possible, they would have been razed and their staffs annihilated.

Naturally, when the new government in planning the expansion of Nanking set aside sites in widely separated places in the city for the several legations, the memory of Boxer days caused the powers to turn a deaf ear to the importunities of the Chinese for an immediate switch from Pekin to the new capital.

The Chinese Nation, unofficial organ of the Kuomintang government, published at Shanghai, reveals the underlying cause for the perturbation of the present Chinese leaders on this subject, when in an editorial attack on the position taken by the Japanese, it says "While some delay is permissible, any further loss of time due to reluctance to take action, or to impudent political speculation, not only hinders the diplomatic business between China and the powers concerned, but also implies a slight of the present government."

All of which is no doubt fine propaganda for the nationalist government, but is not calculated to change the "watchful waiting" attitude of the powers.

When this Chinese government—or some other—has demonstrated that it is firmly enough entrenched to make further disorders impossible, then the powers will undoubtedly lose no time in moving their legations from their present safe quarters to Nanking—if still the capital—and to agree to the abolition of extraterritoriality, but until that time the situation will no doubt remain as it is.

GERMANY CAN PAY.

Theodore Knapper, internationally known commentator, in an article in the Magazine of Wall Street, says that "Germany and the allies can pay, but will they?"

Even with the heavy burden of war reparations, the balance sheet of the German government shows up to better advantage than those of Great Britain, the United States and France, this writer shows.

Commenting on the national debt situation of the leading nations of the world, he says:

Superficially, the plaint of the Germans about the impossibility of paying reparations is ridiculous. Putting the present value of the reparations debt at 9,000 million dollars, Germany's total national debt is only 10.5 billion, as compared with 37 billions for Great Britain, 14 billions for France, 20 billions for the United States and 6.5 for Italy.

At this time of worldwide depression, the necessity for Germany to pay its war reparations has a deeper meaning, especially to the United States, than merely the paying for losses and damages caused by the World War.

With the payment annually on the $9,000,000,000 of reparations owed by the Germans into the exchequers of the European allies and thence to the United States in payment for the loans of this country, added impetus will be given to the return of worldwide economic soundness.

There never was a nation that did not cry "wolf" during a period of reparations payment, but there seems, in view of the facts presented by Mr. Knapper, to be little reasonable ground for the attitude adopted by many German leaders.

Our national debt is twice as large as that of Germany, including its reparation obligations, and as most of our national debt was incurred because of Germany, it is not reasonable to assume that we will lend a willing ear to the talk of cancellation.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Cherchez Femme.

Anatole Lunatcharsky, the last remaining Jew in the soviet government personnel and husband of the best-dressed woman in Europe, lost his job, and it were his wife's clothes that wrecked his career.

Mme. Lunatcharsky came home to Moscow in January after an extended visit to Paris and Berlin, where she lectured and played leading roles in the revolutionary theaters, garbed in costly furs, ultra-chic gowns from the Rue de la Paix and jewelry that might have made an Argentinian millionaire gnash his teeth in envy.

Thus adorned, the beautiful Rosanelle Lunatcharsky, who had taken the western capitals by storm, and who had been a favorite in the salons of the mondaine soviet embassies, roused the ire of the home town proletarians.

The fight was the more bitter since her husband, Lunatcharsky, who has been minister of education since the 1917 revolution, was an intimate of Lenin himself. To him is ascribed the renaissance of the Russian theater and the reform of the school system of the vast country.

His wife was a film actress before she married him. In Berlin she was at one time associated with Edwin Piscator, the director of the show that exhibited the most bizarre pieces of stagecraft in recent years. Periodically, she made trips out of Russia to go back to the German stage and paid flying visits to the Paris couturiers.

She was invited to play in the Russian government films, but did so only with reserve, because her successes therein would be quite impersonal. True to the political ideas of communism, the Russian film studios turned out pictures without stars and, however brilliant Mme. Lunatcharsky might have been on the screen, she rebelled at the notion of having to play under an enforced anonymity.

She accompanied her husband on an extended tour of the Russian embassies in western Europe last year. Wherever she appeared, she caused a flurry of excitement. Even after he had completed his mission, she lingered in Paris, where she addressed fashionable gatherings of women in the exclusive clubs of the Faubourg St. Honore and was the center of attraction at the soviet embassy on the Rue de Grenelle, where at that time her personal friends, the Rakowskies, were still in charge.

Her clothes at that time were the sensation of Paris. She wore fur coats that were valued at thousands of dollars. Her appearance on the lecture platform was greeted with gasps on the part of the audience. Her gown was a green cloth affair, elaborately stitched with gold brocade.

This, combined with her personal beauty and elegance, made her the rage of the moment and "Tout Paris," the French equivalent for the "400," flocked to see her at the Gymnase theater, where she had been engaged for the leading role in "La Dame Aux Camelias," Dumas' masterpiece in which Sarah Bernhardt had starred and won fame. The piece had been revived for Mme. Lunatcharsky's special benefit.

Her head was wreathed in tiaras of diamonds and around her neck she wore precious Orlez stones that cannot be found anywhere but in the Ural mountains. The cut of her gowns started a fashion of their own, the famous Rosanelle design, originated by M. Paul Poiret, who looked after the sartorial perfection of the proletarian envoy's wife. Her play was described as a triumph by the Paris critics, who are ever sensitive to the fascination of a woman of charm.

Reports of the Paris triumph reached Russia. Gossip became so vindictive that madame's husband had to issue a statement saying his wife's jewels were fakes. Paris knows jewels, and smiled.

WOMAN AT MACON ON TRIAL FOR LIFE

made to him. She denies ever having confessed the crime.

Solicitor Charles H. Garrett said today he would call the case of Mrs. Powers first when court opens at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. E. W. Maynard, her counsel, has indicated he will be ready. More than 200 jurors have been summoned to appear.

It was thought Saturday that A. Emmett Barnes, court stenographer, would be unable to be in court for the trial, but Mr. Garrett said today that Mr. Barnes' condition had improved, and it may be possible for him to take the evidence. In case he is not, however, Mr. Garrett said, he has obtained the services of W. E. Swinson, United States district court stenographer.

Earl Manchester, Rochester, Mich., whom officers stated confessed to the slaying, claiming that he was to receive $1,000 from the insurance on Parks' life, was convicted and given a death sentence. His case is still pending in the supreme court.

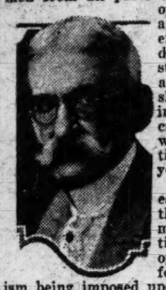

Since his conviction, however, Manchester has told a different version of the affair and denies that he killed Parks.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL.

What Typical Old Rebs Had To Say About the Campaign of 1932.

While in Montgomery attending the Confederate veterans' reunion I met men from all parts of the south, all of them men of age and experience, all of them democrats of the stalwart type, and all of them showing a lively interest in democratic chances to win the presidential race next year.

It was interesting to note that they were men of conservative views and opposed to any form of radicalism being imposed upon the party by demagogues, fanatics or visionaries. In general they expressed the conviction that what the country needs now is a return to the sound fundamental principles of Jeffersonian democracy—equal rights in all government services, the least government interference with the people's self-government, and rigid economy of federal administration.

* * * *

The Angry Boil of Prohibition.

It particularly concerned me to find out what these old Confederate representative citizens thought of the paramountcy of the prohibition problem.

I was really astonished to find that the greater number of them have come to believe that the democratic party should make a strong declaration in favor of returning the problem to the states, with federal guarantees that saloon liquor traffic shall not be re-established by any state and that any state enacting prohibition shall have federal protection against whatever liquor traffic may be tolerated in another state.

In other words, these old soldiers who fought through four awful bloody years of war for state's rights in the matter of slavery are again in favor of contending by peaceful means for the same sort of rights in the states to handle the liquor problem according to their own will.

* * * *

They Resent Church Politics.

One distinguished Virginian, who has held prominent official state and federal posts, replying to my questions, said substantially:

"No; Bishop Cannon and the preachers of the churches will not again lead Virginia into the republican camp. Many thousands of the men and women who followed them in 1928 are now ashamed of having been led into the folly of voting for Hoover on the promise that he would enforce the prohibition laws. They have repented in shame and will keep the state hereafter solidly in the democratic column.

"Churches have no business in partisan political controversies. If they regard prohibition as a 'moral issue,' as they claim it to be, let them fight for it with moral weapons and keep out of political methods. When a preacher tells me that if I do not vote for prohibition candidates only I am a traitor to the country, I tell him what I told every man who said I was a traitor for fighting in the Confederate army—that he is a willful liar!"

* * * *

Quit Regimenting the People.

A half dozen old rebs, sitting with us and listening to the conversation, gave their strong approval to what the Virginian said.

One old Johnny from Arkansas chipped in to say:

"I'm 87 years old and still suffer from the effects of a wound I got in battle in Virginia in '64. I take a spoonful of liquor in water morning and night, because I need that much stimulant. My preacher said I was partner with the bootleggers, and I told him he was a blamed fool, and I ain't been to hear him preach ever since!"

But, over and above prohibition, the feeling of those with whom I talked was that the government is growing too centralized and socialized, and that we need a sharp return to democratic individualism, to quit regimenting the people, and subtracting not only from their personal rights, but from their spirit and habits of self-government.

* * * *

The Favorite for President.

Almost to a man those with whom I talked were of the opinion that Governor Roosevelt, of New York, is the right man for the democratic nomination to the presidency.

None of them seemed to think of him as a stranger; they were more familiar with his personality and public record than I expected to find. Mention of Owen Young, Governor White, of Ohio; Senator Jim Ham Lewis, Governor Ritchie, of Maryland, or any other democrat, brought no favorable response.

The notion seemed to prevail that the country knows Roosevelt, respects his character, has confidence in his statecraft, cares little where he stands on prohibition, and that if any democrat can trim Hoover in the fight next year, the New York governor is the man who can do the job. If those old rebels knew their onions one would get from them the prospect that the whole south will back F. D. R. for the nomination.

The Way of the World.

The Way of the World as Congreve knew it
Was rather a rough and a rowdy way.
And his characters as they roistered through it
Were smart and cynical, hard and gay.

Little was sacred and less respected,
By powdered ladies and fops becurled,
Whose morals and manners we find dissected
By Congreve's wit in "The Way of the World."

And much more Moral, much Better Bred,—
With never a trace of Congreve's vice or
The bawdy manners of days long dead,—

Still, exercising some small acumen
On Congreve's drama, you may exclaim,
"Well, human beings continue human,

—BERTON BRALEY.

It is an interesting compilation, "The Caliph of Bagdad," which is a collection of anecdotes, biographical data, letters, and various friends' recollections about O. Henry. But O. Henry was a furtive, secretive man, who never gave his farm friendship—that is the friendship that means utter trust—to anybody. He had a talent for a certain type of short story; genius is too big a word for his gift. This book is the work of Mr. Robert H. Davis and Mr. Arthur Bartlett Maurice; they have done a good—though to us it seems a hurried—job.

There is one financial transaction—and O. Henry's life was full of them—that the compilers omitted. We were engaged in the writing, with him, of a musical comedy. The script was due, but O. Henry said that he couldn't go ahead until he wrote a couple of short stories, in order to get the money for his daughter, Margaret's, tuition and board at school, which were in arrears. So we went to a savings bank, drew out some money that really belonged to our sisters and gave it to him. It was a magnificent gesture, even in 1909. Well, O. Henry insisted that we be protected in the event of his death, so he wrote letters to Everybody's Magazine, Doubleday, Page & Co., and Harper and Brothers, instructing them to pay us from royalties until we told them to stop. No amount was specified. He died before the debt had been paid, but the money kept coming in to us until we told the publishers that the debt had been discharged.

Concerning this musical comedy, "The Caliph of Bagdad" says: "O. Henry called this aztechnology, and 'The Enthusiastics' was at first suggested for the title." Now, in 1909 we were both punsters, so what we suggested was "The Enthusiaztecs."

"The eventual title, which Mr. Adam credits to O. Henry," says the book, "was 'Lo,' taken from the line of Pope." It was, of course, taken from Pope's "Lo, the poor Indian, whose untutored mind" . . .

While She Dies.

We cannot call her corpse,
While still the spirit warps
Its way into mortality.
The breath can yet be seen,
Moving the lips between—
Spoor of corporeality.

Inevitably soon,
Though weepers importune
The last sublime Physician,
Life's ever thinning mesh,
Relinquishing the flesh,
To death will yield submission.

Shall I decry death's sting—
This but another thing
That Nature bears the slaughters?
No—to my thought appear,
About a piteous bier,
Her little sons and daughters!

Power, a dispatch from Milan says, is one of the things that causes defection from the theater, which is now receiving about $100,000 a month less than usual. Of course, we don't believe it. Whenever there is a drop in box office receipts, the managers always have a whipping boy. The thing that Mr. James Forbes wrote years ago in "The Chorus Lady" is still true: "It's always a bad season for bad shows."

Probably in Milan they call a royal flush a fine Italian hand . . . and do you suppose that Mussolini makes 'em play with the Duces wild?

It is just our luck to write a lot of stuff assuming that stocks are going lower and lower, and then to have the whole market boil.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

BY DR S. PARKES CADMAN.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

You said recently that several states which had abolished capital punishment had afterward restored it. I challenge you to give a single instance of this and also to justify your defense of capital punishment. Even Great Britain, conservative as she is, has abolished the death penalty. A minister should at least be merciful, should he not, as well as accurate?

Yes, he should be both. I think I was accurate as to the facts, however, whatever may be my deficiencies in mercy. Yours is the second letter I have received asserting that no state has restored the capital penalty after abolishing it. I take pleasure in refreshing your recollection on the facts in issue. First let me call your attention to the state of Iowa. In 1872 capital punishment was abolished in that state and was restored six years later. Again, the state of Colorado abolished it in 1897 and restored it in 1901. Yet again, the state of Washington abolished it in 1913 and restored it in 1919. And lastly, the state of Oregon abolished it in 1914 and six years later the people of that state demanded and secured its restoration.

Your reference to Great Britain is premature. That country has not abolished capital punishment. But there is a proposal before the British people to give its abolition a five-year trial. I do not believe the proposal will be accepted. That country's comparative immunity from the commission of the crime of murder argues for the retention of her present policy of speedy justice upon the murderer without fear, favor, or the unhealthy notoriety which too often exalts him or her in the United States to the level of heroism.

After consulting eminent judges and lawyers I am convinced that capital punishment in our country is the principal deterrent which assassins chiefly dread. My sympathy is not with them, but with their nine thousand or more victims who are doomed to die in 1931, if the homicide statistics of the past few years are any guide for the current year, and they undoubtedly are. I think of these victims and of their bereaved families and dependents, rather than of the brutal and ruthless criminals who kill on sight and frequently for a fixed price. Did such creatures meet their just fate, and meet it right speedily, I am convinced that murder would rapidly decrease. But since five out of six escape the death penalty, the murderer takes what he knows to be an excellent chance of escaping the rope or the chair.

Contempt for human life is one of the hallmarks of barbarism. Such contempt prevails here as it prevails in no other civilized land. I would check it by the one means, however painful, which experience assures us is efficient to that end. If this is unmerciful, so be it. Nevertheless, I deem it merciful. Better that convicted murderers should die than thousands of innocent people should suffer a violent death at their blood-stained hands. I take this position both as a citizen and as a clergyman.

* * * *

Cincinnati, Ohio.

As a young clergyman I should appreciate your suggestions on preaching. Some say I should preach the Gospel and not spend too much time on explaining theology. What do you say?

How can we expect people to accept a great message like that of the Gospel unless its ministers first understand and then explain it? Not only non-Christians but Christians need clear and enlightened instruction on the fundamentals of the New Testament faith. These have been obscured almost beyond belief by insistence on peculiar views and disputatious dogmas. Indeed many religiously disposed souls are simply puzzled by controversies of this character. They want to know how the church justifies her belief in a Supreme Being who is at once all powerful and all loving; what the intervention which Christ made in man's spiritual development really means and what meaning it has for them; and the exact significance of the Bible as the literary record of man's experience.

You will discover, I think, that your faithful hearers, to say nothing of those who habitually neglect what you have to offer, are grateful for a pulpit service which sheds light as well as heat on these vital issues of religion. Obviously they are of supreme importance, and need trained minds, sincere thinking and experiential faith for their presentation. Not only Christian doctrines, however, but Christian ethics are retarded and even frustrated for lack of clear explanation. See that they are apprehended, and use modern terms for their apprehension. When that is done, you can proceed to apply the Gospel in its manifold significance, basing your application on careful study of all it involves and requires.

It is easy to say in an offhand way that Christ's program for life must be followed in business, politics and social and industrial relations, or that the international situation is sure to end in tragedy unless men obey the Sermon on the Mount. But why should they obey? Why should Christ's program be followed? Demonstrate that and you will be "a workman needing not to be ashamed."

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY

GASOLINE FOR FOOT ITCH.

There are I don't know how many fancy and flattering names for plain itch or scabies. We're funny that way. We never like to call a disease or illness by its actual name, when it occurs at our house. If one of the family goes daffy we much prefer to say he has a nervous breakdown or something. If somebody develops tuberculosis he is merely run down from overwork. If Aunt Maria or Uncle John catches the itch it is always uric acid trouble or a very busy and exclusive brand of hives.

Take this almost universal foot itch that men, women and children contract when they walk barefoot anywhere that others have walked barefoot recently. Some big nostrum maker, taking his cue from the success of the chap who invented the flattering name for foul breath, almost popularized this ringworm infestation by promoting the idea that it is quite the rage among the bon ton. So now athlete's foot is as popular as athletic underwear. More than half of all college students have ringworm of the feet. Probably they contract it running about in gym or swimming pool barefoot.

In some swimming pools they are now using a special disinfectant foot bath, and this is so placed that every individual must step in it for a moment on his way to and from the dressing or locker room.

The parasite responsible for this foot itch is a kind of fungus. Sometimes it is difficult to destroy in the skin without excessive injury to the skin.

An engineer who suffered long with it tells me he finally cured it by placing his feet in water rather hotter than most persons can stand—I think he said 115 degrees F. Few will endure more than 110 degrees even for a few moments. Probably 115 degrees or higher is a bit too much for the ringworm fungus to survive.

The Whitfield ointment has won fame for its curative value in foot itch. It doesn't cure every case, but it will cury many. The formula is:

Salicylic acid	15 grains
Benzoic acid	25 grains
Soft petrolatum	2 drams
Coconut oil	To make 1 ounce

Apply each night to affected patches of skin, for a week. Wash off each morning. Rest a week. Resume if necessary.

For use in the daytime, Whitfield (London skin specialist) advised this similar formula:

Benzoic acid	11-2 drams
Salicylic acid	1 dram
Acetone	1 ounce
Dilute alcohol	To make 4 ounces

This is to be dabbed or sopped on once a day and allowed to dry before dressing.

Dr. J. R. Crawford has reported his observation that ordinary commercial gasoline gives instantaneous relief to the itching, and lasting cures in many cases. He suggests immersing the foot for six to eight seconds in the gasoline. I warn readers who may try this to beware of using ethyl gas—use only plain gas.

Dr. William Gould reports excellent results from a footbath of 10 to 15 per cent sodium thiosulphate solution installed between the locker and shower rooms of a high school where foot itch was very prevalent. (This is ordinary photographers' hypo.) In four weeks this practically cleared the trouble out of the school.

Most of the stoppage of prosecutions come from the office of the prosecutor. Indictments may be dismissed by nolle prosequi, cases may be dismissed on pleadings or for want of prosecution; or they may be settled without trial by the acceptance of a plea of guilty to a lesser offense than charged.

This authority gives the prosecutor "greater power in the administration of the criminal law than that possessed by the judge or by any other official," the report said.

The commission found the salary of prosecutors to be low, their terms short and their tenure uncertain. It urged in its recommendations to put the post out of the class of "a political prize" and "beyond the reach of local politics."

In an accompanying report Alfred Bettman, Cincinnati attorney, went more fully into the situation. He said the situation "clearly justifies the conclusion that the system as a whole is not an efficient one."

TRIAL TO BE FIXED FOR DAVID H. CLARK

LOS ANGELES, June 7.—(AP)—W. Joseph Ford, special prosecutor of David H. Clark for the alleged slaying May 20 of Charles Crawford, politician, and Herbert Spencer, publisher of a magazine, announced today an information will be filed and a trial date set this week.

Would You Prefer Ten Rich Customers Or a Thousand Prosperous Ones?

By Robert Quillen

Many noted financiers, who should know what they are talking about, assure us that wages must be lowered to hasten the return of prosperity.

What do you think of their argument?

It is conceded that bad times continue because six million men are jobless and unable to spend money. Their wages have been cut 100 per cent.

Can we hasten the return of good times by doing the thing that causes bad times?

Those six million men employed at five dollars a day would earn and spend nine billion dollars a year. For want of that expenditure times are dull.

Suppose there are thirty million people still employed. Reducing their wages an average of one dollar a day would cut their buying power nine billion dollars a year.

If times are hard because the public's buying power has been reduced nine billion dollars, what reason is there to believe that good times will return if that buying power is reduced another nine billion?

The figures aren't exact, but they will serve.

Now consider another matter.

The income from business is divided two ways. Part of it goes to capital; part of it to labor. Part of it is wages; part of it dividends.

When less is distributed as wages, there will be more to distribute among stockholders.

The argument is that wages should come down because commodity prices have come down and thus lessened profits; but the hope behind the argument is that wages will come down in order to keep dividends up.

Will that arrangement make prosperity?

Consider what it means. Those who live on dividends are thousands; those who live on wages are millions. If those who live on dividends are prosperous, they buy only a few thousand automobiles, radios, electric refrigerators, washing machines, vacuum cleaners. But if those who live on wages are prosperous, they buy these things by the million.

That is the vital difference. No matter how rich the rich are, they buy comparatively little. But when the millions are prosperous, they buy much to keep the wheels turning to make profits to distribute as dividends.

Cut wages below a certain figure and every cent will be spent for bread and meat.

The consumers who provide a market for manufacturers are the millions of wage earners. Take away their buying power and there will be no dividends.

GERMANS, BRITISH WILL CO-OPERATE ON DEBT PUZZLE

Count Bernstorff, Sir Frederick Leith Ross and Malcolm MacDonald.

"The visit was arranged several months ago as a means of establishing personal contacts. The opportunity of these former meetings was taken for friendly talks on the position in which the German reich and other industrial states now find themselves.

Difficulties Guessed.

"Special stress was laid by the German ministers on difficulties of the existing position of Germany and the need for alleviation. The British ministers, for their part, called attention to the worldwide character of the present depression and its special influence on their own country.

"Both parties were agreed that in addition to efforts and measures of a national character, a revival of confidence and of prosperity depended upon international co-operation.

"In this spirit both governments will endeavor to deal with the present crisis in close collaboration with the other governments of the world."

The communique came as a surprise to a large group of newspapermen awaiting the return of the German statesmen to the Carlton hotel in London this evening. They had been told the visitors would receive the press upon their return from Chequers.

Shake Hands Only.

Instead both of the ministers merely shook hands with the reporters with whom they were personally acquainted and Curtius smiled and said:

"I am sure the gentlemen are not waiting for an interview. We have nothing to add to the communique."

Both then quickly disappeared in the elevator.

This shift in arrangements is understood to have been made at the specific request of the British foreign office, which is believed not to have been pleased with Bruening's interview with the press on his arrival Friday.

The first intimation that the Chequers conference may be followed by another meeting on German soil was given when the visitors expressed gratitude to their host and added, significantly:

"We trust that we may soon return your kindness by your and Mr. Henderson's coming to Germany."

From one of those present during the discussion the Associated Press correspondent learned the world's economic and political troubles were discussed not only in their special relation to Germany but also on a broader international basis, especially as effected by the Young plan, armaments, reparations, tariff walls, customs barriers, unemployment and industrial depression.

No Tenseness.

"There was no hurry," the Associated Press informant said. "There was none of that tense atmosphere often prevailing during international conferences, when a specific job must be done within a specific time.

"At Chequers everything was discussed in a spirit of utmost friendship and cordiality. There was give and take on both sides and no angle was untouched. In that way the meeting more than justified itself."

Asked whether anything concrete was likely to result from the conference, he replied:

"We feel that the ball has been started rolling on the whole international economic question, especially reparations.

"Naturally, England and Germany alone cannot solve the problem, but it is important that parties to the Chequers conference went on record before the whole world in urging international co-operation and in promising each other to collaborate closely with the other governments concerned."

Not Interested.

In the German delegation some disappointment was manifested that the British public, judging from the position given to the German visit in newspapers, seems more interested in the "trooping of the colors" yesterday's sports and today's earth tremors, than in the discussion of such fundamental importance as that at Chequers.

Some consolation was found, however, in the fact that at Chequers the interest among the conferees was so keen that discussions continued Saturday night until long after midnight and were resumed at an early hour today.

The German statesmen in private talks emphasized how pleased they were that MacDonald had invited the president of the board of trade, the governor of the Bank of England and Sir Leith Ross of the British treasury to yesterday's and today's functions.

"You can make your own deductions from this," the visitors were quoted as saying. "You may rest assured that the discussions were chiefly financial and economic."

For the first time since their arrival in England last Friday Bruening and Curtius were free to do as they pleased this evening. The chancellor visited a personal friend while Curtius called on a distant relative.

Tomorrow the German envoys will be received by King George.

DR. CURTIUS OPTIMISTIC OVER CONFERENCE RESULT

LONDON, June 7.—(AP)—Dr. Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, was optimistic tonight in discussing with friends here the week-end conference which he and Chancellor Heinrich Bruening had with British officials at Chequers.

The German statesman also intimated that Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Foreign Minister Arthur Henderson might pay a return visit to Germany in the near future.

"We sought and found human contacts and the opportunity for a friendly exchange of ideas," Curtius said. "I deem it of great importance to emphasize that it is not a conference from which we return, but a friendly conversation.

"As you see from the communique Germany and the worldwide crisis occupied the foundation of the discussions. . . ."

Miss Flora E. Strout, Brazilian W. C. T. U. worker, speaking at the same church of the W. C. T. U.'s work in Japan, Straits Settlements, Burma, and Brazil, said other countries were solidly for prohibition, and that she was "amazed when I returned to America to find not all churches were strong on the liquor question, especially because many other religions forbid drinking."

She said a Buddhist priest told her his people became Christians so they could drink.

"If we lose the eighteenth amendment, we might as well bring our missionaries home and close our churches," she concluded.

Other W. C. T. U. delegates spoke tonight in more than 70 churches in and around Toronto.

note to Italy tomorrow, again demanding an explanation of the government's delay in suppressing demonstrations against the pope.

An unimpeachable source told the United Press that, if the third note is not answered within a reasonable time, the Vatican will send a fourth note, informing the government of the possibility of severing diplomatic relations and publishing a white book explaining the position of the holy see in the controversy over closing of Catholic young men's clubs on charges of political activity.

The white book would be issued within ten days or a week thereafter, and the nuncio to Italy would be recalled. The Vatican continued hopeful, however, that a satisfactory answer would be received to the notes, particularly since King Victor Emmanuel was represented as anxious to avert a break.

SPANISH TOWN OFFICIALS WARN ECCLESIASTES

MADRID, June 7.—(AP)—Authorities in various Spanish towns have warned ecclesiastical officials against dissemination of clerical propaganda.

The governor of Tercul informed the bishop and several priests to cease spreading propaganda in behalf of Cardinal Segura and the bishops of Malaga and Vitoria, who have been deported.

The governor of Castell warned the Franciscan Father Albantosa after he is said to have delivered a sermon at Morella which caused disturbances among the populace.

LITHUANIA EXPELS ARCHBISHOP BARTHOLONI

VATICAN CITY, June 7.—(AP)—The reported "expulsion" of Archbishop Bartholoni, papal nuncio to Lithuania, from that country, was described as inaccurate at the Vatican today. It was said he was "invited to leave the country" and at the same time was recalled by the Vatican.

Church officials insist that international law requires that Lithuanian authorities answer the Vatican's demand for reasons why Bartholoni is termed persona non grata.

A report to Berlin yesterday said that the archbishop had been required to leave the country within 24 hours or be removed forcibly. He was said to have left after having incurred the disfavor of the government for alleged interference in cultural affairs.

MASSACHUSETTS POSSE HUNTS MISSING GIRL

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., June 7.—(AP)—Police, Boy Scouts and a posse of volunteers tonight were searching the sand dunes of Cape Cod for Miss Catherine Bill, 26, who disappeared last night. She is the daughter of Alexander H. Bill, of Cambridge and Provincetown, wholesale tea and coffee merchant.

OFFICIALDOM OF FRANCE PLEASED WITH OUTCOME

PARIS, June 7.—(AP)—French officialdom today expressed itself as pleased with the tenor of the communique issued at the close of the Chequers conference between th British and German ministers.

Satisfaction was expressed that the British ministers should go on record as saying a renewal of world confidence and prosperity depends upon international co-operation.

BOYKIN WILL ASK FOX HEARING DATE

Mrs. Coburn Is on Way Here to Fight Plea of Mate's Slayer.

Solicitor-General John A. Boykin today will ask that a date be set for a hearing on a parole plea by Phillip E. Fox, former editor of a Ku Klux Klan publication, who was sentenced in 1923 to life imprisonment for slaying William S. Coburn, leader of an opposing faction in the Klan. Mrs. Coburn, widow of the slain man, left Savannah Sunday for Atlanta, where she is expected to set into motion machinery to oppose granting of a parole. She will be accompanied by her daughter, and Mrs. Stephen N. Harris, sister of Coburn.

William Schley Howard, who assisted in the prosecution of Fox, is expected to oppose the parole, according to information from members of the Coburn family. Telegrams were reported sent by them to Chairman E. L. Rainey, of the prison commission, protesting the parole. According to S. N. Harris, Coburn's brother-in-law, Solicitor-General Boykin also will fight the parole.

Fox's application for parole was presented by the firm of Howell, Heyman & Bolding, backed by a large number of letters from citizens of Dallas, Texas, and a letter from Judge B. H. Dunaway. He was convicting of shooting Coburn four times, fatally wounding him, while the latter was sitting in his office in the Atlanta Trust building. Fox gave as his reason for the shooting that Coburn was about to make revelations that "would ruin him."

Coburn was attorney for the Simmons faction of the Klan, which at the time was having difficulty with the faction headed by Dr. Hiram W. Evans.

Sailors, Marines on Duty.

In addition to the entire available equipment and personnel of Norfolk, fire apparatus and fighters from Newport News, Portsmouth, South Norfolk, Suffolk, the naval base and Norfolk naval yard were brought to the scene. Detachments of sailors and marines from the battleships Arizona and Utah and from the naval base were used to aid police in establishing fire lines, some 500 being placed on active duty with another 800 held in reserve.

One of the first buildings to go down was the Victoria hotel. Miss Carrie Ambrose, telephone operator, sounded the alarm when the roof caught fire and stuck to her switchboard until all guests had cleared the building. An unidentified blue jacket stood on top of the hotel signalling instructions until the flames forced him from his vantage point.

Soon the wholesale warehouse district was a seething mass of flames and firemen gave up hope of saving it, concentrating their efforts on preventing spread of the havoc to Granby street and the commercial center of the city.

Fire Captain J. W. Gregory was the most severely injured, although two other firemen were overcome by heat and smoke. A number of others were dragged out by fellow workers when on the verge of collapse.

Establishments Burned.

Among the establishments burned were: the American Peanut Corporation, Victoria hotel, the National Bag and Paper Company, Union Mission, Crockin-Lacy store, Gerloff Brazing Company, Tidewater Supply Company, Farmers' Manufacturing Company, A Wrenn & Son Paint Shop, City Hay and Grain Company, The Farmers Company, Godreys Body Builders, and Norfolk Farm Supply Company.

The T. J. Hooper, 200 foot tug belonging to the Eastern Transport Company, was badly damaged and an unidentified tug and a smaller barge also were burned. A fire engine was burned when the flames jumped from one block to another.

During the hottest part of the fight against advancing flames, ambulance attendants were giving doses of whisky to exhausted firemen, and at fire stations throughout the city wives and other members of the families of men on the force gathered in anxious groups awaiting word that they had come out safely.

Radio "Whisky Call" Results in Seizure

The first "whisky call" broadcast by the Atlanta police radio, early Sunday morning, resulted in the confiscation of 14 gallons of corn liquor and the arrest of John Lewis Hood, negro, of 968 Coleman street, S. W.

The call was placed on the air by Operator J. G. Cobble, and was picked up by Officers E. S. Acree and C. P. Whaley. They were informer that whisky was reported being sold at 968 Coleman street. They rushed to that number and found the 14 gallons and several pint bottles of whisky before occupants had had an opportunity to close a "trap" in the floor where it was secreted, the officers said.

MEDICAL GROUP SEES BRAIN STUDY PICTURES

BY HOWARD BLAKESLEE

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—(AP)—A promising method of using movies to unravel mysteries of the brain's control over health is shown at the American Medical Association's annual convention opening here tomorrow.

The pictures are one of the new developments in medicine displayed in the scientific exhibits. They give physicians the opportunity in a few minutes' study to analyze years of a patient's life, much as a poker player penetrates the motives of his opponents by watching their faces and nervous movements.

The pictures were taken during the last five years at the St. Elizabeth hospital at Washington, the government institution for the insane. But their application is not confined to insanity.

They record the peculiar facial expressions and movements of patients who later died and whose brains now reveal the reasons for the troubles. The brains are mounted under glass in such a manner that the observer sees vividly the damage that expressed itself in action in life.

By study of the pictures and the brains, physicians can recognize the earmarks of similar troubles in the living, and in some cases take action before it is too late. In other instances medicine now knows no remedy and the movies are simply a new method for scientific study. The exhibits were developed by Walter Freeman, M. D., and Karl H. Langenstrasse, M. D.

One is a case of carbon monoxide poisoning which later developed into insanity. The records indicate good possibilities of saving cases of skull fracture that develop into epilepsy, and they show the difficulties facing the surgeon in attacking brain tumors.

Other cases include adult forms of St. Vitus dance, paralysis in various forms, unrestrained crying, and the various lesions underlying epileptic convulsions and the effects upon the brain of tuberculosis and syphillis.

The progress of medical research within the past year. They are presented by individual investigators, university groups, and scientific sections of the association, by public health groups interested in special diseases and by government departments in the field of health.

Huge Gold Smuggling Is Probed by Mexico

MEXICO CITY, June 7.—(AP)—Organized smuggling of millions of dollars worth of Mexican gold out of the country was under investigation today by the attorney general's department.

Instructions had been sent to government representatives at all border points to aid in the probe and establish a strict vigilance so as to guard against continuation of the activities.

In May alone $2,500,000 in gold pesos were smuggled into the United States, the attorney general said.

The smugglers get a better exchange rate for the gold in the United States than is available in Mexico and thus reap a profit on their operations.

Texas Guinan Keeps Girls to Self on Ship

S. S. PARIS, AT SEA, June 7. — (By Radio) — (AP) — Texas Guinan was continuing today to cloister the members of her "gang" on their return journey from France, where they failed to secure permission to enter the country.

Just after lunch some of the men-about-town on board the steamer prevailed upon a steward to try to bring at least a couple of Texas' "girls" up to the promenade deck. The watchful eye of Texas stopped them, however, and they never got as far as "B" deck.

PARTIES RESUME TARIFF WARFARE

Democrats Ask Revision While G. O. P. Charges Political Scheming.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—The democratic national committee today renewed its attack on the Smoot-Hawley tariff while from republican headquarters came the charge that democracy has no constructive program to offer, and is "tuning up its anvil chorus for the 1932 campaign."

Through the party organizations statements were issued by Representative Garner, of Texas, and Tilson, of Connecticut, minority and majority leaders of the house.

Garner said Klein "has been delegated as defender-in-chief of the Smoot-Hawley tariff."

"Abstruse Theories."

"Whenever a critic of the administration points out that that blundering piece of legislation is responsible for the slaughter of our foreign business and the continuation of panic conditions in the United States," he said, "Dr. Klein comes to bat with some high-sounding and abstruse economic thesis to show that retaliatory duties imposed by a foreign country are ot really measures in reprisal at all and that the halving of our foreign business is simply the result of world conditions with no bearing at all on the embargoes which have made it impossible for other countries to buy our products in volume adequate enough to keep our factories anything like fully employed."

The republican statement, by Representative John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut, said, "Hammers in hand, democratic leaders are busy building for 1932 a platform having as its motif denunciation of all things republican, the same strain that has run through all the democratic platforms for more than half a century.

"Free-trade democrats criticize the republican tariff while their colleagues wail before the tariff commission for higher rates on commodities produced in their sections.

Democrats Hit.

"Aligning themselves with those foreign interests which wish to ree our tariff destroyed, immigration bars removed and the cancellation of foreign debts, the democratic spokesmen spout anti-tariff arguments coined abroad and 'denounce' republican protection without specifying what rates they would lower or what branches of industry and agriculture they would cripple.

"Marked by internal dissension and unable to agree on anything except criticism of the party in power, democracy is following its traditional course. Having no constructive platform the party leaders indulge in their favorite pastime of maligning the opposition and opposing the existing order of things."

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 7.—(AP)—Forty members of the Yale faculty, it was announced tonight, have signed petitions addressed to President Rightmyer and the board of trustees of Ohio State University, protesting against the dismissal from the faculty of Professor Herbert A. Miller.

Submarine Nautilus Nears Grand Banks

BOSTON, June 7.—(AP)—The submarine, Nautilus, in which Sir Hubert Wilkins and a group of scientists plan an under-ice expedition to the north pole, today was nearing the Grand Banks on its trip to England.

At 8 p. m. today, the coast guard cutter, Ponchartrain, escorting the Nautilus as far as the Grand Banks, reported the submarine was 900 miles northeast of Boston at a point just south of Sable island.

STORM IN ARKANSAS CAUSES $100,000 LOSS

IMBODEN, Ark., June 7.—(AP)—A violent hail storm here last night caused an estimated damage to buildings and crops of $100,000.

The hail storm, lasting about 15 minutes, covered an area 18 miles long and four miles wide. It began at 10:30 o'clock and was followed by rain.

Knee Decreed Limit For Bathing Suits

SPRING VALLEY, N. Y., June 7.—(AP)—The knee has been decreed the limit for women wearers of bathing shits and knickers on the streets of Spring Valley.

Chief of Police Bertram Durie issued his ukase, which is directed principally against vacationing New Yorkers, after receiving protests from what he termed "church people." He said wearers of costumes tending toward the extreme would be prosecuted on a charge of indecency.

Emory Speaker Blames Depression On Life's 'Mechanical Perfection'

Failure to increase the quality of moral and intellectual life in proportion with technical perfection was the cause given for the present depression by Dr. Umphrey Lee, pastor of the Highland Park Methodist church, Dallas, Texas, in delivering the baccalaureate sermon Sunday morning at Emory University.

Dr. Lee, whose church is associated with the Southern Methodist University in Dallas, also is professor of homiletics there.

"Our interest has been in putting our intelligence in building the things of dust, but we have spent little intelligence in solving just what we would do with the products of dust," pointed out Dr. Lee. "As a result we have created technical machines that we cannot manage and that are dominating us.

"Our mechanical perfection has become too big for us, and the very intricacy of the technical products baffles us," he continued. "When we meet with such a problem, we have depressions like that of the present, and our very institutions of civilization are threatened. At present, the family is going to pieces in the wheels of the divorce courts, and nations have been threatened with international anarchy.

"Unemployment has been a result of such an unbalanced development. We have striven in every possible way for the perfection of mechanics, but we haven't developed enough sense to give the unemployed man a job.

"The thing that we as a nation and a civilization must face is that the spirit side of the development must dominate and not the mechanic. Institutions of education have not been interested enough in whether students are able to keep their eye on the creative side of development. There is already plenty of machines and organization, but the true spirit must be breathed into the products we have made of the dust.

"War of any kind, whether it be international or economic, is racial suicide, and the war between the buyer, consumer, and producer is arrant stupidity. We must build our hearts taller than our skyscrapers and we must make our spirits more powerful than our engines," concluded Dr. Lee.

The sermon, which opened Emory's ninety-first commencement program, was held in the university auditorium due to the fact that the completion of the new Glenn Memorial church has been delayed.

The program will be continued through Tuesday, June 9, when the baccalaureate address will be delivered by Dr. John H. Finley, associate editor of the New York Times. At that time honorary degrees will be conferred upon Judge Orville A. Park, of Macon, and Dr. Howard W. Odum, of Chapel Hill, N. C.

This year's class, which is composed of 268 members, is the largest in Emory's history, and 81 students already have been awarded degrees at earlier convocations.

The program for today consists of reunions of the alumni. Approximately 500 graduates will attend the 14 class reunions. Judge Virlyn B. Moore, '02, of Fulton county superior court, will speak to the assembled alumni at 11 o'clock in the theology chapel. Virlyn B. Moore Jr., son of Judge Moore, is a member of the graduating class.

At 1 o'clock a barbecue luncheon for the faculty, alumni and seniors will be held at the university dining hall, and President and Mrs. Harvey W. Cox will entertain with a reception at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

"A population of 500,000 by 1935" is Atlanta's slogan. Let's all pull together for a Greater Atlanta.

The Constitution's Weekly Business Review

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

There is hardly a need or a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

JOHN H. HARLAND CO. STARTS NEW SERVICE

A new department devoted entirely to carbon paper and ribbons has been opened by the John H. Harland Company, at their conveniently located retail stationery store, 8 Pryor street. Under the direction of a thoroughly trained factory representative this department offers an invaluable service to Atlanta business firms in the selection of the correct carbon and ribbons, which invariably results in considerable savings to purchasers.

In addition to its retail store the John H. Harland Company operates its own manufacturing plant, specializing in the production of high-grade lithographing and printing. The plant is located on Highland avenue at Jackson street.

The officers of the company are: John H. Harland, president and treasurer; P. Rufus Brown, vice president; C. B. Merritt, assistant treasurer; John A. Butler, assistant secretary, and H. Grady Wilson, sales manager.

FORMER ROYAL LANDS OPENED TO SPANIARDS

SANTANDER, Spain, June 7.—(AP) The park surrounding Magdalena park, former summer home of exiled King Alfonso, will be opened to the public tomorrow. The republican mayor ordered the populace to respect the property and not to use the grounds for picnics. Vehicles will be prohibited.

Rainy Sunday Checks U.S.Mayors' Excursion

PARIS, June 7.—(AP)—The American mayors visiting France were given a view of a Parisian rainy Sunday today. There was a heavy downpour during the morning and early afternoon.

Most of the executives had to forego an excursion to the Chantilly race track to see the three-year-old filly, Pearl Cap, capture the famous racing classic, the French "Oaks."

The majority of mayors remained at the hotel and attended to official and personal correspondence. This evening they journeyed to Versailles for a big firework display and a concert in the grounds of the palace of Louis XIV.

SOVIET TO TAKE PART IN INDUSTRIAL PARLEY

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—Mary Van Kleeck, vice president of the International Industrial Relations Association, today announced receipt of a cablegram from V. I. Meshlauk, vice chairman of the supreme economic council of the U. S. S. R., indicating the soviet would send delegates to the World Industrial Relations Congress this fall.

The congress, to be held at Amsterdam the week of August 23, will consider social economic plans and balance between purchasing power and production.

Held in Shooting.

CLEARWATER, Fla., June 7.—(AP)—R. N. Black, Brookers Creek farmer, surrendered at county jail here early today several hours after the shooting of Frank Albury, also of Brookers Creek. Albury was critically wounded during an argument between the two men and is not expected to live. He is in a hospital at Tarpon Springs.

VALUE OF RE-ORDERS HIGHLY ESTIMATED

"One re-order is worth a hundred words of praise," declares S. Guthman, head of one of this city's oldest institutions, the Atlanta Envelope Company. "When a customer renews a contract, or when he sends in an order and simply says 'Send me some more envelopes just like the last you furnished'—well, we know he is satisfied, and that's enough for us."

As evidence of customer satisfaction, Mr. Guthman pointed to two renewal contracts just received by his company from national organizations maintaining their headquarters in Atlanta. "These contracts," said the manufacturer, "represent the eighth annual consecutive renewal. In other words, these folks have been using our envelopes for their circularizing, mailing out of statements and general correspondence for the past eight years, and the total number of envelopes is quite sizeable."

The Atlanta Envelope Company's plant on Stewart avenue is one of the most completely equipped envelope-making establishments in the entire country. All types of commercial envelopes are made there—not only the so-called standard sizes, but also any special shapes or sizes. In this plant are manufactured the nationally known four-in-one patented pay envelopes; envelopes that have become increasingly popular with concerns employing 25 or more people.

DIXIE TYPOGRAPHERS OPEN MEETING TODAY

MOBILE, Ala., June 7.—(AP)—Charles P. Howard, president of the International Typographical Union, headquarters at Indianapolis, will be the outstanding guest and speaker at the Southeastern Typographical Conference that convenes here tomorrow.

Mr. Howard came in today from New York, where he has been on business. He was welcomed by a committee from the local typographical union.

Colonel Dowell E. Patterson, member of the staff of the governor of South Carolina and southern organizer for the American Federation of Labor, has already arrived for the conference. George L. Googe, of Savannah, chairman of the southern organization, is also here.

The first session will be held Monday night, the program including addresses, music and dancing.

NACOGDOCHES, Texas, June 7. (AP)—Miss Bennie Melton, 17, was seriously wounded today when she was struck by a bullet fired by boys practicing with a rifle. The bullet went through her arm and lodged in her chest. The same bullet went through the ear of a companion, Bennie Bell Hearn, 13.

Sullivan Sees Little Chance Of 5 Billion U. S. Bond Issue

Washington Observer Finds Two Great Objections to Plan Calculated to Improve Business.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The attitude of Washington toward the drive for a $5,000,000,000 bond issue for public works is like its attitude toward all proposals for hastening business recovery or ameliorating the depression, one of careful and patient consideration. It should be added that the final determination about at least 19 out of 20 such devices is rejection because of fallacies involved in them.

The suggestion for a $5,000,000,000 issue has a wide variety of proposers or seconders. That it should come from social workers and humanitarians is understandable and commands consideration. That it should come from politicians is understandable but of negligible importance. That it should come from some economists gives point to a quip which speaks of "economists formerly known as astrologers."

The proposal, however, comes likewise from some, though by no means all bankers, who would ordinarily be free from business fallacy. These bankers have an interested, motive which may warp their judgment. Their financial institutions are in the common phrase "lousy with money" which is earning nothing. Whenever a government bond issue is made, as the one of $800,000,000 last week, the bankers put their idle money into it happily. So long as a new and enormous government bond issue is anticipated this money is likely to continue idle waiting for this investment. This is one reason why mere agitation for a big government issue has the effect of delaying business recovery rather than hastening it.

Extremely Improbable.

While nothing is foreclosed, and every suggestion is considered sympathetically and in the light of existing conditions, nevertheless any one familiar with the attitude of Washington would say that a $5,000,000,000 issue is extremely improbable. One reason lies in the slow but nevertheless perceptible recovery that business is making.

The objection to an immense government bond issue as a means of hastening business recovery can be illustrated by considering the two possible destinations for idle money in the banks. If it goes to a government bond issue for public works, the "public works" would consist chiefly of road building. Road building is the one possible use for $5,000,000,000 that the proposers of a bond issue are able to name when asked to get down to cases and be specific. The roads would be built in the usual way by the federal government contributing half with the state governments contributing the other half.

At this point it may be asked just how many states are ready and willing to give an average of a hundred million dollars each toward a road building program. The principal, the interest, and especially the upkeep of the new roads over years to come would come out of the state taxpayers. Most of the states are already so burdened with taxes that raising enough present revenue is an acute problem without adding a new and enormous expenditure.

Other Side.

The other side of the picture can be seen by considering the destination to which the idle money in the banks will go provided there is no government bond issue. If it is realized there will be no great government bond issue, the idle money will ultimately and surely go into private industry. It will begin by absorbing the existing sound bonds of industrial and public service institutions. Presently it will be available for new construction and new extensions of business by private industries.

Idle money will seek employment a- surely though more slowly than idle labor. There is plenty of work in ordinary industry for idle money to begin on. For example, one great railroad is prepared to spend nearly $200,000,000 on electrification. If idle money goes into private industry, it will become a future producer of taxes for both federal and state governments. If it goes into public works it and the future interest on it becomes a consumer of taxes for years to come.

It is urged by proposers of a bond issue that an element of time and emergency is involved. It is urged that through government public works, money will get into circulation more quickly. That is doubtful. It takes time for government to move. Some of the appropriations for public works made by congress last February will not express themselves in wages to laborers on the job until next September. This is inevitable in public works.

It is possible, and it is believed by competent persons that a year from now anyone looking back upon today will realize that diversion of idle money into government work, instead of letting it find its way into private industry, would have had the effect of delaying business recovery.

U. S. URGED TO LEND AID TO WORLD ARMS PARLEY

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—An appeal to the government of the United States to exert every influence at its command to insure the success of the forthcoming world conference on disarmament at Geneva was made public today, signed by 66 officials and members of 38 national organizations.

The statement, addressed to President Hoover, recommended the Washington administration give serious consideration to the principle of budgetary limitation as one of the steps to be taken in effecting a drastic reduction of the world's armament.

Making it clear that they were speaking not on behalf of their organization but as individuals, the signers united in urging "the United States to formulate a policy setting forth what steps we would be prepared to take to preserve the peace in case of a threatened violation of the Kellogg pact."

Parents Are Given List of Reminders For Hot Weather

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—Well-tanned, but not sunburned, is the summer prescription of the children's bureau for the boys and girls.

Issuing hot-weather reminders to parents today, the bureau advised taking on the coat of tan gradually.

Other instructions were:

In planning vacations, be sure the house to which you go is clean and well-screened.

If traveling where typhoid may be, have the children inoculated.

Boil all drinking water not known definitely to be safe.

See that the child drinks three or four glasses of cool, unflavored water daily.

Use no raw milk. If pasteurized milk is unobtainable, boil what is used.

Do not buy food from counters where it has been exposed to dust and flies.

Every child should be outdoors five to six hours daily.

Children under six need a midday rest with at least one or two hours of sleep.

BEDDING COMPANY BUSINESS RUSHING

T. H. Moore, manager of the Imperial Bedding Company, 442 Cain street, N. E., reports that his firm is having a great season in mattress rebuilding, and is now calling for and delivering made-over mattresses not only in and around Atlanta, but all over the state of Georgia.

One of the largest mattress renovating concerns in this part of the country, the company's plant is located in a large brick fireproof building, that was especially built for the purpose. The equipment is the same for the most part as the large mattress manufacturing plants. With the latest modern equipment and an organization of expert workmen, they can run up to 150 capacity a day.

The average housewife, boarding-house keeper or hotel man would be astounded to see the rapid way they handle mattresses. As soon as an old or soiled mattress is brought in, no matter where it comes from, it is put into their large oven-like electric sterilizer, and the heat run up to around 240 to 250 degrees. This quickly means that no bug, germ or parasite is alive after 15 minutes of this extreme heat. The old ticking is then ripped off, the cotton dumped into a cotton gin and reginned. The dust is then blown out, and the cotton passed on to large felting machines to be made into cotton felt roll, and these rolls are cut up into the size of the mattress. New selected ticking is put on, and then passed on to the sticking department, where workmen quickly turn it over to the delivery department, ready to be returned to the owner.

The rapid service this firm can give means that the mattress, called for before 9 o'clock in the morning, can be returned by 5 or 6 o'clock the same day. This arrangement does not inconvenience the household, nor cause any worry, nor crowding up. They have large, covered, rain and dust-proof, fast delivery trucks.

Producer Refuses Al Jolson's Offer On 'Green Pastures'

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—Al Jolson's hope of playing "De Lawd" in "The Green Pastures" was shattered today when Rowland Stebbins, the producer, announced that he had declined the blackface comedian's offer for the motion picture rights of the Broadway attraction.

Jolson had cherished the dream of stepping into the shoes of Richard B. Harrison, negro dramatist who created the role and played it more than 500 performances.

Charles G. Stewart, general manager for Stebbins, said the play would close its Broadway run June 27 and embark up on a tour which "may require several years." He said all of the present cast would make the trip and there would be but one road company.

It is for that reason, the announcement said, that screen rights have been withheld despite "an unusually attractive" offer from Jolson, who had planned to offer David Wark Griffith direction of the film version.

Depression Expected To Cut Sun Bathing

NEW YORK, June 7.—(UP)—Sun-tan addicts are going to be less numerous this year than last, because the fad costs the nation more than $1,400,000 a year, according to Dr. Charles F. Pabst, noted dermatologist of Greenpoint hospital.

"The business depression," Dr. Pabst said, "has emphasized the waste resulting from the annual loss of 200,000 working days due to illness from sunburn. Therefore it is bound to become unfashionable for people to lie out in the sun until they're blistered."

LIBERALISTS OUTLINE NATION-WIDE PROGRAM

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—Seeking among other things enactment of legislation to admit pacifists to citizenship and repeal of a federal law forbidding dissemination of birth control information, 123 representatives of 30 liberal organizations met today to plan joint action for a nationwide "defense of civil liberties."

Other objectives included liberation of Mooney and Billings in California and Centralia I. W. W. prisoners. In Washington state, passage of a federal anti-injunction bill, Russian recognition by the United States, and freedom for the Philippines.

FORESTRY PLANTING SHOWS BIG GAIN

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—Nearly 20,000 agencies—federal and state governments, schools and colleges, industrial and civic organizations and individuals—planted 138,970 acres to forests last year, a gain of 24 per cent over 1929.

These plantings, figures compiled by the forest service show, brought the total of all lands reforested in the United States to date to 1,798,049 acres.

U. S. SEEN AS DIRECTOR OF CIVILIZATION'S FATE

SARATOGA, N. Y., June 7.—(AP) Senator Robert F. Wagner today declared America must take the lead if the present day civilization is to be saved from destruction.

The democratic senator from New York said he saw a need of a "new prophet who can interpret the present economic depression in terms of human need and persuade the people that in a world of plenty mass poverty is not only stupid but unjust."

He spoke at the national convention of the Independent Order of Brith Abraham.

"Too much, far too much in the hands of the very few, too little in the hands of the great masses—none can deny that is an accurate picture of the present situation," he said.

"None can doubt that in that unreasonable inequality flourish the seeds of instability and collapse.

"You may be sure of this. The civilization we cherish will not endure in a world torn by war, distracted by hate, laid low by depression.

"If we would conserve this civilization, we must take the initiative. We cannot wait until others who see in it nothing of value tear it up by the roots. The next move is ours."

Senator Wagner likened the present world conditions to those of the days of the renaissance, the Protestant reformation and the French revolution.

The changes which have occurred in Italy, Spain, Germany, Russia, England, India and South America, he said, are the "surface eruptions of a spirit which is feverishly seething underneath."

Constitution-Capitol Beauties Make Last Appearance Today

"Miss Atlanta" or "Miss Georgia" To Be Selected From Group of 75 Contestants for Title.

Composed of 75 beautiful Georgia girls, The Atlanta Constitution-Capitol theater beauty pageant will go on the stage for the last time at 8:55 o'clock onight. Two other shows will be held in the course of the day, however, enabling everyone to see the pageant. The girls go on at 3 and 5:45 o'clock this afternoon. And your applause will help in narrowing down the field to a small group, from which "Miss Atlanta" or "Miss Georgia" will be selected.

Attired in the latest bathing things, the girls come on the stage one at a time, each getting her share of the spotlight. By applauding the beauties it likes best the audience has the privilege of eliminating others whose chance of winning the title of "Miss Universe" at the international beauty pageant in Galveston, Texas, may be a trifle slimmer.

The last appraisal, of course, will have to be done by expert judges. Some lucky girl, whose face, figure and personality are considered most nearly perfect by the judges, will be sent to represent Atlanta at the Galveston pageant, where she will meet beauties from all over the world in a competition for the title of "Miss Universe," a cash prize of $2,500, screen tests and stage contracts.

Whoever wins the contest here will be completely outfitted by Atlanta merchants for her trip to Galveston. A life-size statue of her will be made by J. Don Amazon, Atlanta sculptor. And it is understood that Capitol theater officials will arrange a screen test for her. Remember the hours when the pageant goes on the stage at the Capitol: 3 p. m., 5:45 p. m. and 8:55 p. m.

"DADDY LONGLEGS" APPEALING AS EVER

"Daddy Longlegs," with the more than ever charming Janet Gaynor in the principal role, is a great deal more than the talking version of that perennially appealing story. It is a picture into which the director has packed a little bit of everything with an extra dash or two of pathos and humor.

Warner Baxter, in the role of Jervis Pendleton—of the Pendletons, to be sure—is the unknown benefactor who finds Judy Abbott (Janet Gaynor) in the kind of an orphanage grand juries sometimes investigate. An indulgent feminine relation persuades the middle aged bachelor scion of the house of Pendleton to pay for the education of Judy.

At college, in her second year, she rooms with Sally McBride (Una Merkel) and gets to see a lot of Sally's brother, Jimmy, played by John Arledge. Arledge supplies to the picture an important essence—a quite satisfactory personification of the modern collegian. He is easily a clever second string performer.

Splendid in its simplicity, orthodox enough in its romance and powerful in dramatics, "Daddy Longlegs" is one of the most wholesome pictures shown in an Atlanta house in a long time.

"The Putter," first of a series of twelve Bobby Jones golfing lessons to be shown at the Fox, is—in Atlanta, at least—equally welcomed by golfers, dubs and those who wear knickers for no particular reason.

"Topical Tunes" is the Fancho and Marco idea on the stage, with some exceptional talent, including the Alexander sisters, "sweethearts of the stage." There is an "Our Gang" comedy, Enrico Leide presenting "Italo-American love songs," a Leide Stradivarius cello solo and Smiling Al Evans at the mighty organ.

Quite a lot of cool, summer entertainment.

MURDER MYSTERY SHOWN AT GEORGIA

If you like murder mysteries garnished with the missing "jools," (and who doesn't?), "The Maltese Falcon," at Keith's Georgia Theater this week, is your dish. Ricardo Cortez and Bebe Daniels work out a complicated plot and arrive at an astonishing solution of the baffling case.

Cortez, as a fee-grabbing lawyer suspected by the police of murder, is drawn into a network of intrigue concerning a blackbird statuette supposed to contain a fortune in jewels. Miss Daniels fits somewhere in the puzzle, but you'll never guess where until the last episode of the story.

Una Merkel, Thelma Todd, Walter Long and other members of the supporting cast perform well.

Caesar Rivoli, in "Melodies of Yesterday," offers some impersonations of noted orchestra conductors and draws hearty laughter and applause. Rivoli closes his act with a spectacular scene honoring Victor Herbert. Bradford, Crisam and Van Alst dance with skill and originality.

Clifford and Marion tickle ribs with pleasant nonsense and win a big hand. The little girl is clever. Ashley Paige entertains with snappy xylophone melodies and plays a saxophone duet. Yes, a duet with one player and two instruments. Other acts and short talkie features complete a good program.

COTTON GOODS SALES REGISTER INCREASE

NEW YORK, June 7.—Hunter and Company's sales last week were considerably better than for the past couple of weeks and the week closed with more interest being shown than at the beginning. Prices are lower again and this has brought in orders from some of those buyers who have been waiting for lower prices.

"Others are still waiting," says Hunter's statement, "though we do not think they are as confident of their position as they were. There has been a very large business done on cheap curtain materials.

"National Cotton Week has brought unusual activity to the big retail stores; sales of cottons are said to have broken all records. Retail stocks must have been tremendously cut into, but so far the Worth street district has not felt the result; it will in the course of time, naturally.

"Prices have dropped to figures not based on anything whatsoever connected with actual or possible cost to produce. Even the most determined bear would not venture to back his opinion that cotton would sell at such a low price as would enable the mills to break even at some of the prices at which sheetings can be bought today. If these conditions continue, they can only lead to one thing, and that is further and greater curtailment this summer. It may be possible to make a little profit on some of the print cloths but, on the coarse good generally, such a thing as a profit is hard to find.

"This week for the first time we have had healthy, upward reactions in the stock and cotton markets. These are very welcome and will play an important part in the re-establishment of confidence even though one stiff rally may not necessarily establish a definite upward trend. We are still of the opinion that, with any re-establishment of confidence, business will start up, certainly as far as textiles are concerned, and we are looking for gradual improvement from now on. We believe that all cotton goods are selling at prices that are unwarrantedly and unreasonably cheap."

THREE DETROITERS INJURED IN WRECK

VALDOSTA, Ga., June 7.—Mrs. D. E. Bartz and party of two, of Detroit, Mich., were all seriously injured in an automobile wreck Sunday morning at Sycamore, a small station 60 miles north of Valdosta, according to a telephone report to the American Automobile Association agency at the Valdes hotel here.

Details of the accident were meager, but it was understood that a boy in the party suffered such injury that physicians had great difficulty in stopping the flow of blood. Mrs. Bartz stated that she was so seriously injured she doubted if she could continue her journey soon, and that her car was badly wrecked.

Mrs. Bartz and party were en route from their winter home in Miami, to their home in Detroit.

BERLIN NEWSPAPERS ASSAIL TAX DECREES

Action Declared as "Intolerably Burdening Impoverished People."

BERLIN, June 8.—(Monday)—(AP)—Chancellor Bruening's tax decrees were condemned today by Berlin newspapers in stronger terms than have yet been used by the German press in criticizing a governmental decision.

The press this morning carried headlines such as "The Cup is Full," "Wrong Path," "Hunger Decreed," "Down With the Decrees."

On all sides the decrees were announced as intolerably burdening an impoverished people for the sake of keeping up the reparations payments.

The Vossische Zeitung and the Boersen Courier agrees the decrees are "a brutal and unjust imposition upon the salaried and impoverished classes, without a laudable purpose, and raising the menace of radicalism."

The Boersen Courier, however, said that it was satisfied with the manifesto of Chancellor Bguening because it gave a promise of speedy negotiations for a reduction of reparations payments.

The industrialist "Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung" sees the decrees as a sure sign of an impending "death hour of the Young plan."

The plan, the paper said, is not dying of old age, but as a baby which is unable to live because those who promised to bring it up neglected it.

The democratic Volkszetung said "The decrees are a knockout blow to the working classes. The Bruening era is characterized by a dangerous lack of psychological understanding."

The nationalist paper, "Der Tag," headlines "The reparations colony," commenting, "now Germany will have to raise collossal sums, billions, in reparations, which will be removed from the natural channels of production and which will vanish into the gold depositories of France where they will repose idle."

DOAK ADDRESSES TENNESSEE CLASS

HARROGATE, Tenn., June 7.—(AP)—The things which count for success in life were set out by Secretary of Labor W. N. Doak today in delivering the annual baccalaureate address to graduates of Lincoln Memorial University, a small college in the Cumberland mountains near the three-point convergence of the states of Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee.

"No man or woman succeeds in life, who, upon reaching the first years of maturity, rests satisfied with what has been done," Secretary Doak said. "Life's road from the plain leads ever upward and should be followed with unceasing striving for betterment, not alone of self but of others.

"Man, man's work and nature and nature's work make up life. One enters upon his study from the doorway of the school house. Learning is a matter of development.

"In life, kindliness and courtesy are better weapons than rudeness and aggressiveness.

"I think that no man and no woman can be entirely successful in life if his or her whole interest is given to one thing. Specific knowledge always should be accompanied by general knowledge. A broadness of view and a broadness of understanding make for the humanities.

"This is a work-a-day world and the sole genuine pleasure of life springs from work. I do not mean there should be no ease or recreation; work makes ease and recreation the sweeter."

Secretary Doak recounted the lessons to be learned from the life of the man for whom the institution was named, Abraham Lincoln, pointing out how he overcame obstacles and the fear of failure.

The degree of doctor of humanities was bestowed upon Secretary Doak by Chancellor John Wesley Hill. The chancellor announced the establishment of a chair of citizenship in honor of the late John W. Weeks, secretary of war.

Myers Y. Cooper, former governor of Ohio, will deliver the commencement address Monday.

Christianity Only Basis of Peace, Says Dr. Knight in First Sermon

In his initial sermon as pastor of the Second Baptist church, Dr. Ryland Knight Sunday told his congregation that while the present is an age of invention and power—the incorrect use of which is deleterious to humanity—it is impossible for civilization to turn backward.

Dr. Knight, who succeeds to the pulpit made vacant by the retirement of Dr. Edwin M. Poteat, was feted at a reception by his new congregation Saturday night. In his forenoon sermon Sunday the new pastor intimated that any world-wide peace and natural progress must be built upon Christianity as personified by Jesus Christ.

Comparing his impressions of Atlanta to those of the Apostle Paul as the latter faced his ministry in the imperial Roman city, Dr. Knight said:

"One cannot, even for two days, be a citizen of Atlanta without feeling the pulsing power of its mighty spirit, its vitality, its confident facing of the future. On the threshold of my ministry here, I turn to that greatest preacher of them all, the Apostle Paul, as he faced his ministry in the imperial city of the Roman empire and wrote in the fifteenth and sixteenth verses of the first chapter of Romans, 'So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the Gospel to you also that are in Rome. For I am not ashamed of the Gospel, for it is the power of God.'

"We live in the age of the superman," continued Dr. Knight. "How vastly human power has multiplied. The man who could travel 90 miles a day and hurl a weapon 75 yards, now travels 90 miles in a quarter of an hour and hurls his weapons of destruction 75 miles. The mechanical resources of America have developed until there are 30 iron slaves busily serving each inhabitant. Great wealth, mighty industrial organizations, tremendous enginery of power—these are commonplaces of our modern life.

"Such power rightly used is a blessing; wrongly used, is hurtful to human welfare. Edison says we should have no more inventions until we are wise enough and good enough to make proper use of those we already have.

"But we cannot go backward. We must learn how to properly control the mighty enginery of our modern life. There is one solution. If no gun were fired until Jesus of Nazareth pulled the trigger, we should all feel safe. No gun would then be fired save in the cause of righteousness. If no ship sailed until His hand loosed her from her moorings, then no ship would ever sail on a selfish mission, and no S O S call of need would ever go unanswered. A distinguished Chinaman wrote in opposition to Christianity, but confronted with the character of Christ, he said, 'The spirit of Jesus must get into the blood of every one of the 400,000,000 people of China before we can ever hope to climb out of dark into light, out of death into life, out of the pit in which we now are.' That is true of America, also. The spirit of Jesus is the solution of our problems.

Religion of Power.

"Christianity is a religion of power. Its business is to supply adequate spiritual power for the problems of right living. The Gospel of Christ is the power of God. The word 'power' occurs in the New Testament twice as often as the word 'prayer,' and three times as often as the noun 'love.' Adequate power for life—that is the purpose of the Gospel.

"Unless adequately controlled, our modern civilization will wreck itself, will commit suicide. The World War demonstrated this. Hate, greed, selfishness, prejudice cannot handle the mighty resources of our modern life.

"Lloyd George was right when he said, 'It is Christ or chaos.' Only the spirit of Christ can make our great industrial organizations agencies of the common good. Only the spirit of Christ can wisely direct the rising tide of freedom around the world. Only the spirit of Christ can establish and maintain friendly international relationship. Only the spirit of Christ can guide our youth into strong and useful manhood and womanhood.

"But Christ is adequate. His spirit dominant over individual lives and organized society guarantees our future. 'I am not ashamed of the Gospel, for it is the power of God.'"

AUSTRALIA, CANADA AGREE ON TRADE PACT

Dominion Limits Import of Butter in New Document.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 7.—(AP)—A trade agreement between Australia and Canada was signed in the respective capitals Saturday, it was learned today. Premier R. B. Bennett, it was said, may make a statement concerning it in the house of commons tomorrow.

Much criticism was leveled against the former agreement because of the low duty it provided in Canada against Australian butter. When Canada was not producing all the butter used in this country, the question of imports of butter was considered important because it brought Canadian prices approximately to world prices plus the duty. Accordingly, an understanding was made with Australia last winter to limit the amount of butter it released on the Canadian market.

Australia produces many articles which do not compete with Canadian products, including raisins, fruits, etc., and it is argued Canada's imports from that country could be greatly stimulated by preferences and an energetic sales campaign. Canada seeks Australia's market particularly for automobiles, various other manufactured articles, and lumber.

SUSPECT IS RELEASED IN BROOKLYN KILLING

New Jersey-Delaware Line Dispute to Open

BALTIMORE, June 7.—(AP)—A hearing on a centry-old boundary dispute between New Jersey and Delaware will open tomorrow at 11 a. m. at Philadelphia, it was said today by William Lee Rawls, who was appointed special master by the supreme court in January, 1930.

Delaware claims part of the Delaware river to the New Jersey shore. The controversy is similar to that in which Maryland and Virginia engaged for more than a century and which was settled in 1929 by giving Maryland control of the Potomac.

FLORIDA WOMAN DIES OF ACCIDENTAL SHOT

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., June 7.—(AP)—Mrs. F. M. Browne, of Bradenton, died here late last night of gunshot wounds inflicted a week ago when she and her sister, Mrs. J. Y. Blake, St. Petersburg, scuffled for possession o a gun they thought to be unloaded.

Police and county officers today said the shooting was accidental and exonerated Mrs. Blake.

CHIANG ACCEPTS FOES' CHALLENGE

Nationalist Leader To Lead Forces Into Battle Against Bandits.

NANKING, June 8.—(Monday)—(AP)—Chiang Kai-shek, generalissimo of the nationalist government, today ended all rumors that he was planning to retire immediately as a result of attacks against his administration from insurgents in southern China.

In a statement to officers and men of China's nationalist revolutionary armies, the general termed himself their comrade, appealed for their unreserved loyalty and announced he was leaving immediately to head the government military drive in Kiangsi and Hunan provinces against communists and bandits. This reign of lawlessness, he said, is "the worst menace now threatening China."

Chiang said he would end the brigand rule by terror in the Yangtse valley, or "I shall die in the attempt."

Then referring to rumors he intended to resign, he added that if he was successful in crushing the lawlessness, "I will retire to my birthplace near Ningpo, thereby proving to the world and nation I have no ambition to establish a dictatorship nor another dynasty as charged by my reactionary enemies."

Chiang referred only in veiled terms to the present Canton crisis, merely warning soldiers he desired them to refrain from participating in civil wars "such as reactionary elements repeatedly seek to instigate."

The generalissimo attempted to reassure his legions concerning the government's reported intenion of engaging in wholesale troop disbandment, thereby leaving thousands of soldiers without means of support. He branded those who spread reports as "lacking common sense and patriotism."

"Our armies are not unjustifiably large," he continued. "With a firmer political administration and increased resources there will be no necessity of curtailing our military expenditures, instead they will be increased. What China should be anxious about now is not poverty but civil disturbance, not financial stringency but national disunion."

Referring to charges of the Canton insurgents that he had enhanced his power by maintaniing a strong military force, Chiang said:

"They slander me as a military dictator. All sorts of accusations have been heaped upon me as the target of poisoned arrows. That I endure these without talking of retirement is because our revolution is not yet complete. Should I retire now suffering of the people would increase and our nation would face extinction. I leave now to direct the anti-bandit campaign. If I succeed, I will retire. If I fail, I shall die fighting."

Meanwhile, information concerning what is occurring among the Canton insurrectionists consists of conflicting and unconfirmed reports. It seems established that southerners are attempting to establish a rebel government which, however, is far from functioning satisfactorily and which is destined, according to the most widespread view, to collapse as a result of internal strife among its leaders.

SPAIN'S LABOR HEAD LAUDS NEW REPUBLIC

PARIS, June 7.—(AP)—Largo Caballero, Spanish minister of labor, who is visiting France, was presented with a red flag, knotted with the red, white and blue of France, in the name of French Federation of Labor, at a meeting in Trocadero square today.

"The Spanish republic has come to stay," Cabellero told the French labor leaders. "It is ready to co-operate with all countries in defending peace."

Premier Pierre Laval received the Spanish minister and assured him that the new republic could count on the active sympathy of the French government.

Child's Matches Burn 32 Quebec Buildings

QUEBEC, Quebec, June 7.—(AP)—A small boy playing with matches started a fire in the village of Notre Dame de Tring, in Beauce county, yesterday which destroyed 32 buildings and damaged several others.

The village telephone office was one of the buildings destroyed and news of the fire only reached here today.

Among the buildings destroyed were a girls' convent under the direction of the sisters of Notre Dame des Victoires, and the local branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale.

HORTON SUPPORTERS TO ASK VOTE ON CASE

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 7.—(AP) Impeachment proceedings against Governor Henry H. Horton await further action this week by the Tennessee house of representatives.

Just before adjourning for the week-end the house quashed one of the eight articles presented against the executive and decided to postpone consideration of the rest until Tuesday. Only local legislation was to be taken up when the house reconvenes Monday night from its recess.

Heartened by the 58 to 41 vote against adoption of the first article, opponents of impeachment planned to push the other seven charges to a vote as soon as possible. The governor was accused in the first article of being in a conspiracy with Colonel Luke Lea and Rogers Caldwell for the purpose of trading control of several state departments in exchange for the political support of the publisher and financier.

CALDWELL FACES COURT ACCUSED OF FRAUD

The first trial growing out of the failure of Caldwell and Company, Rogers Caldwell's $30,000,000 investment banking house, is scheduled to start in criminal court tomorrow with Caldwell himself as defendant.

A postponement, denied last week, again will be sought by the financier's attorneys, but state's attorneys said they would resist any effort toward a further delay. C. Vernon Hines, assistant district attorney-general, declared the state is "ready and anxious to go ahead."

Caldwell is charged with fraudulent breach of trust in connection with the alleged transfer of securities guaranteeing payment of funds belonging to Hardeman county, Tennessee. The indictment alleges that the collateral placed with the Bank of Tennessee, as trustee, to secure funds left with Caldwell and Company by the county, was transferred to Caldwell and Company and securities of less value substituted.

INCENDIARISM HINTED IN BLAZE AT MUNICH

MUNICH, Germany, June 7.—(AP) Munich's citizens were speculating today over whether or not incendiarism was the cause of the disastrous fire yesterday which destroyed almost 3,000 valuable works of art in the famous old crystal palace.

From near-by towns people crowded in today to see the ruins. Suburban trains were jammed and the streets in the vicinity of where the old glass palace stood were crowded with automobiles.

Most of those who discussed the fire were inclined to believe that it was incendiary, possibly the work of some disgruntled person.

Whatever caused the conflagration it seemed most likely today that it will never be known. Every bit of evidence was annihilated in the utter ruin wrought by the flames.

There was an outside stairway leading up the north side of the structure which might have permitted the entry of an incendiary. The building was not electrically lighted, so that the possibility of a short circuit was out of the question. That it might have been caused by a burning cigaret was considered unlikely, because the last worker left the building at 9 p. m., a watchman made hourly rounds and the fire was discovered at 3 a. m.

Bomb Wrecks Home.

NEW ORLEANS, June 7.—(AP)—A bomb was exploded early today on the front porch of the residence of Joseph Gersner, foreman employed by the T. Smith & Son, Inc., stevedores. No one was injured, although damage amounting to $200 was done to two dwellings.

U. S. Department of Commerce to Combat Loose Business Ways, Says New Chief Here

W. L. Mitchell, new manager of the Atlanta district office of the federal department of commerce, was in conference with visiting officials of the bureau when this picture was taken. The men are, from left to right: A. E. Boadle, manager of the Mobile office; Mr. Mitchell; E. F. Gerish, chief of the domestic regional division, Washington, and J. E. Addicks, manager of the Birmingham office. Staff photo by George Cornett, staff photographer.

Domestic work of the federal bureau of foreign and domestic commerce is being "pepped up" through new policies which include a fight on loose business methods, according to W. L. Mitchell, new district manager of the Atlanta office who assumed his duties here last week.

Attention will continue to center on foreign commerce, but the domestic work will be increased greatly, Mr. Mitchell said. The department expects to use commercial organizations, such as chambers of commerce and trade associations, in the dissemination of information gathered in surveys of business methods, and is seeking the co-operation of these organizations, he said.

Mr. Mitchell has been with the department of commerce for eight years. He became connected with the service in Washington, and served as commercial agent in New York. He made a trip abroad to study trade conditions, and then became assistant manager of the Louisville office. He was transferred to Norfolk as manager, and came from Norfolk to Atlanta. Mr. Mitchell was educated in the foreign service school of Georgetown University, Washington. His home is on Long Island.

NEW CHARGES MADE IN N. Y. GRAFT PROBE

NEW YORK, June 7.—(UP)—The city affairs committee, which precipitated the citywide investigation of alleged municipal corruption, now being conducted by Samuel Seabury and a committee of the state legislature, today called upon Seabury to include "an organized system of public plunder involving officials of the Queens borough government" in the general probe.

Borough President George U. Harvey, republican; Commissioner of Public Works John J. Halleran and former Superintendent of Highways Irving Klein, recently removed after indictment for accepting a bribe, are named frequently in the charges.

"These officials," the charges state, "could not have been unaware of the system. The situation in Queens requires a thorough investigation of all officials who are concerned with the making of contracts with the borough government."

The committee lists four separate charges.

One, known as the Aragona construction case, alleges that borough officials set up a dummy construction corporation "which gains contracts for work by underbidding all other companies and then cheats the city by building below specifications.

The second charge is concerned with the sale of stock in the New York City Airport, Inc., in the promotion of which, the committee states, both Harvey and Halleran permitted their names to be used.

The third specific charge involved the erection of a fence which blocked off a public street in Queens, by the New York Air Terminals, Inc. Laurence Halleran, it is alleged, made $10,000 by selling the land to the company, and when the fences, blocking the street, were erected, borough officials refused to take action of any kind.

The fourth and last charge is directed against Martin Mager, former president of the independent democratic organization in Queens. Mager is accused of office selling.

Mexico Will Train Huge Reserve Army In Nation's Schools

MEXICO CITY, June 7.—(AP)—The newspaper El Universal Grafico today said plans to create a Mexican military reserve of 1,500,000 trained men will be worked out by a government commission and presented to President Ortiz Rubio for his approval this month.

According to the newspaper, the scheme involves military training in all public schools, starting in kindergartens where children will be taught to play with toy soldiers and given other preparatory training.

From the first grade up, actual military studies will be given. The newspaper estimates that within a few years the upper schools will be turning out thousands of trained soldiers each year.

This reserve force would be in addition to the standing army of approximately 60,000 men and the present agrarian reserve estimated at 100,000.

FOUR PERSONS HURT IN AIRPLANE CRASH

HASBROUCK HEIGHTS, N. J., June 7.—(AP)—Four persons were seriously injured today when an airplane crashed at Teterboro airport. The motor of the plane stopped a few moments after the take-off.

The pilot, George De Garmo, president of the New Standard Flying Service, was believed to have attempted to avoid crashing into a house. The turn he made plunged the craft from an altitude of 100 feet into a ditch. He and three passengers were unconscious when taken to Hackensack hospital.

THREE MEN'S BODIES FOUND AFTER CAVE-IN

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—(AP)—Bodies of three negro workmen buried beneath tons of stone, dirt and debris early yesterday morning were recovered today. Bodies of two others had not been reached when darkness again made rescue work difficult.

The negroes were buried when sidings erected for concrete work on the 32-story Philadelphia Savings Fund Society building gave way and a landslide followed. Four others were injured and forty men escaped.

A policeman was killed when a patrol wagon in which he was riding to the scene struck an automobile.

COLUMBIA WILL ADD NEW GRADUATE SCHOOL

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—Dr. Frank D. Fackenthal, secretary of Columbia University, today announced the Graduate School of International Affairs, for which provision was made in the will of the late Judge Edwin B. Parker of Washington, D. C., will be established at the university.

A board of supervising trustees appointed by Judge Parker, including United States Justice Harlan F. Stone, Secretary of State Stimson and Attorney-General Mitchell has approved the action. About $2,000,000 will be available for the new school.

ATHEISTIC TEACHINGS ARE BLAMED FOR CRIME

CHESTER, Pa., June 7.—(AP)—Dr. George E. Guille, president of William Jennings Bryan University, of Dayton, Tenn., today declared that atheistic teachings in the colleges are to blame for the "awful increase in crime and immorality in this country."

TROOPS STAY ON DUTY IN SANTIAGO DE CUBA

HAVANA, Cuba, June 7.—(UP)—Troops continued on duty in Santiago de Cuba today with no renewals of rioting such as occurred yesterday at the American consulate.

The problem of maintaining peace among the unemployed in the Santiago region has become acute, however, due to the ending of the sugar-grinding season and the cessation of labor on public works.

PANTAGES TO ASK CASE DISMISSAL

Counsel May Contend Girl Accuser More Than 21 Years of Age.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 7.—(AP)—Attorneys for Alexander Pantages, wealthy showman, and the three other defendants in the "girl market" case today indicated they planned to move early this week for a dismissal of the charges.

The prosecution opened last week and presented two witnesses, John P. Mills, well-to-do real estate broker, formerly a co-defendant who pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor and Lydia Nitto, youthful complaining witness. Miss Nitto will resume the stand tomorrow for further cross-examination.

Pantages was accused with Jesse H. Shreve, investment banker, and Olive Clark Day and William Jobelman, alleged operators of a Hollywood "girl market," of conspiring to bring Miss Nitto to a hotel party here last October and violating the juvenile court law.

Although Miss Nitto testified she was but 17 years old while describing occurrences at the party, on cross-examination she admitted having given her age in a sworn affidavit last year as 22.

Defense attorneys said the motion to dismiss might be made at the conclusion of Miss Nitto's cross-examination on a contention that she was more than 21 years old, the limit of jurisdiction of the juvenile court law.

Prosecuting attorneys said they would vigorously oppose any effort toward dismissal of the charges.

Mills, whom the defense contended was an accomplice and that therefore his testimony must be corroborated, laid the state's foundation for the conspiracy charge. He said he and Shreve agreed to pay Mrs. Day $200 to bring Miss Nitto and Helen Livingston, another girl, from Hollywood to the party, which was planned to "put Pantages in a good humor for a conference on an overdue $80,000 note" the three of them had signed.

KEEP KISSABLE

WITH OLD GOLDS

OLD GOLDS were created to give you THROAT-EASE . . . as well as a more delightful tasting cigarette. But the makers also considered your breath, your lips, your teeth, as well as your THROAT.

They created a pure-tobacco cigarette . . . entirely free of coriander and other greasy artificial flavorings* that burn into clinging, staining, breath-tainting vapors.

To avoid unpleasant aftermaths, smoke pure-tobacco OLD GOLDS. Their clean, sun-ripened, natural-flavored tobaccos will be like honey to your THROAT. And they leave no objectionable odors either on your breath or clothing, or in the room.

HERE'S THE PROOF*

Open up a pack of OLD GOLDS and smell the tobacco. Do the same with any other cigarette. Judge for yourself which has the natural, pleasant, all-tobacco aroma. It's a favor to your family and friends, as well as to yourself, to smoke NATURAL-FLAVORED, pure-tobacco OLD GOLDS.

CORNELIA MOORE NURSERY TO BENEFIT FROM REVUE

La Fontaine Dancing Pupils To Present Performance

Dainty small maidens and handsome members of Atlanta's younger masculine contingent will trip gaily in a series of intricate dances next Saturday afternoon at the Woman's Club auditorium at 3 o'clock for sweet charity's sake, as the pupils of the La Fontaine School of Dancing are presented in an elaborate revue for the benefit of the Cornelia Moore Day Nursery. The entertainment is sponsored by the Cornelia Moore Auxiliary of the Sheltering Arms and the Order of Old-Fashioned Women.

The little folk who spend the working days at the nursery while their mothers are busy earning a living, and who are given loving care in the spacious nursery, are to be special guests at the affair and will occupy the boxes. They will wear the small checked pinafores which they don in the mornings when they arrive at the nursery and discard upon their departure in the late afternoon. Of special interest is the song to be presented by this group of children.

Variety of Costumes.

There will be a variety of costumes displayed in the revue which have been designed by Mrs. Charles E. Fontaine, founder and director of the school. Many brilliant and novel numbers will be presented. The advanced pupils will give a classic waltz as the finale of the colorful affair. Soft-shoe numbers will vie for interest with the tap and eccentric dances. The baby class has planned a special number and there will be a skating waltz, toe ballet, butterfly dance and several songs added for variety. A novel offering will be the choo-choo train dance with tap innovations.

A feature of the revue will be the Fairy Box of Sweets, originated by the talented Mrs. La Fontaine. Fairy dancers will open the box disclosing candies dear to childish hearts. At once, the sweets will come to life and present, in turn, amusing and graceful numbers. There will be stick candy, chocolate drops, a nut, cherry, marshmallow, hard candy and the old-fashioned variety.

The music will be in charge of Mrs. Joe P. Barnett, assisted by Mrs. Eugenia C. Fambrough. The public is invited and the price of admission is 50 cents, or $1.00 for box seats.

The Cornelia Moore Auxiliary members who are arranging the affair include Mrs. Ewell Gay, chairman; Mrs. Lewis Gregg, treasurer; Mrs. Glenville Giddings, president of Sheltering Arms; Mesdames Joel Hurt Jr., Winship Nunnally, Harrison Jones, Floyd McRae Jr., Henry Tompkins, Rucker McCarty, Brooks Morgan, J. D. Osborne and Robert Troutman.

Youthful Dancers.

The children taking part in the revue are Sarah Allen, Catherine Allen, Betty Ramseur, Martha Johnson, Shelton Johnson, Myron Lee, Bessie Astin, Frances Breitenbucher, Joan Barnett, Virginia Barnett, Anpelle Baker, Beverly Burgess, Harriet Broadnax, Jane Carey, Anita Chapman, Josephine Cornell, Betsy Cowan, Beverly Dobbs, Ellen Evans, Florence Cauthen, Doris Fowler, Martha Garvin, Betty Garges, Elizabeth George, Jean Fambrough, Ann Hinkle, Laviece Hightower, Emelie Heinz, Harriet Ivey, Mary Jean Ivy, Ruth Green, Constance Kennedy, Laurie Lassiter, Barbara Lee, Annette Livingston, Jean Luttrell, Mary Lee Logan, Marquerite Logan, Gloria Ann Melchor, Lillian Morris, Martha Mobley, Maxine McAuley, Gloria McCleskey, Betty McLendon, Grace McFee, Martha McElheney, Helen Norman, Marion Oliver, Lois Partridge, Marie Reed, Betty Regenstein, Helen Roberts, Peggy Ray, Jane Ruth, Elizabeth Respess, Frances Settle, Billie Steelberg, Dorothy Sims, Beverly Sims, Jasquelin Mac White, Louise Thurman, Margarette Tutan, Marion Thibaut, Jackie Vernoy, Evelyn Winchester, Sarah Wood, Henrietta Wood, Doris Yarbrough and Blair Yarbrough.

Professor Duney Gives Performance

Joseph A. Loewinsohn, well known music critic, writes interestingly in the following article of the performance given by Professor Boris Duney, well known pianist in the series of recitals sponsored this past spring by the Jewish Educational Alliance:

"Wednesday evening, in the last of the series of musical recitals which began some months ago at the Jewish Educational Alliance, Professor Boris Duney displayed his versatility as a first rate concert pianist and as a composer of no lesser degree. Preceded by Edward M. Kahn, executive director of the Jewish Educational Alliance, who briefly outlined the life and works of Ernest Bloch, the contemporary Jewish composer, Mr. Duney opened the program with Bloch's two Preludes. These were followed by "Andante" from Bloch's symphony "Israel," the symphony in three movements of exquisite tonal beauty and rare grandeur of racial expression.

"Bloch's "Shalom," in which the composer sought to fathom the soul of his people, was faithfully interpreted by the pianist. Mr. Duney scored again as a sensitive portrayer of the subtle nuances of this piece replete with the melancholy motifs of the ancient Hebrews.

"In the second part of the program Mr. Duney came in for a great deal of unstinted praise for his own composition "Romance de Revolution," which was played for the first time before a southern audience. This opus which was published by Jurgenson of Moscow and Berlin, was conceived during the riotous days of the Russian revolution and has for its theme the momentous events that transpired in the Russian capital and of which the pianist was an eye-witness. The composition, abounding in personal reminiscences of Mr. Duney, was executed with an admirable display of artistic temperament and made the audience feel the puissant eloquence of music as a medium for portraying the gamut of human emotions.

The vocal feature of the evening was Madam Mina Hoffman's capable rendition of Man-a-Zucca's "Rachem." The popular sopora-accompanied by Irving Lipshutz, once more endeared herself to the audience through her artistic performance.

State P.-T. A. Chairman Points To Seven Cardinal Objectives

The following article by Mrs. H. G. Parks, state publicity chairman of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers, carries a message of importance to the members of the organization:

"It is important at this time, at the beginning of a new parent-teacher year, when congress units are planning the coming year's work, that all officers and chairmen bear in mind that the seven cardinal objectives composing the permanent platform of the Congress of Parents and Teachers, and the 19 aims of the children's charter will be closely interwoven to form the basis of programs of work in all communities throughout the coming year. All local associations in the state are urged to give their whole-hearted co-operation and support to a realization of the principles set forth in the charter. The resolutions adopted at the national convention at Hot Springs in May are offered as a guide in correlating and promoting the objectives of the congress and the aims of the charter. The Parent-Teacher Institute to be held at the University of Georgia July 22, 23 and 24, will be a splendid source of information on how to achieve the aims of the children's charter through the Parent-Teacher Association.

"The state president, Mrs. R. H. Hankinson; the state board of managers and all state chairmen are urging every parent-teacher unit in Georgia to arrange to send representatives to the institute in order that a statewide unified program may be possible. Exhibits featuring publications on the children's charter used at the recent national convention may be secured and used by Parent-Teacher Associations. Details of exhibits, various types and how to secure same will be given at the institute.

Child Welfare.

"This year promises to be an epoch-making period in the life of the Child Welfare magazine, the official organ of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, with a nation-wide circulation campaign among the 1,511,203 members of the organization featured in celebration of the twenty-fifth year of its successful publication. Beginning September 1 and continuing through November 30, 1931, the campaign will be carried on intensively in the 48 state branches, and the Hawaiian congress, composing the national organization. Every local association in the state is urged to appoint a chairman of Child Welfare magazine, and be ready to take an active part in this campaign the day it begins; each parent-teacher member in the state must feel a personal responsibility for the success of this project if it is to succeed in Georgia. A magazine chairman appointed for each room may form local committees, which would not work a hardship on any one, and would make possible a canvass of every home in the community, a distric' award, a council award, and local awards would be a means of stimulating interest and emphasizing the campaign, and a real service to children accomplished by placing the magazine in the parents' hands.

"Another interesting project in which any accredited member of a congress unit may participate has been launched by the Child Welfare Magazine Company in order to stimulate interest in the official magazine and in publicity-essay writing, and offers the two following awards for the best state bulletin article which shall show the uses to which Child Welfare can be put by different types of local associations and study groups: A state life membership to the author of the article; a national life membership to the state branch which publishes the article, the branch to be allowed the privilege of deciding to whom the national life membership shall be given. The article shall not exceed 750 words, and must be written and submitted to the state bulletin by an accredited member of a congress unit, and must appear in an issue prior to March, 1932. The awards will be made at the 1932 convention of the national congress, which will meet at Minneapolis, Minn. Write to the state chairman of Child Welfare magazine, Mrs. P. G. Hanahan, 91 Fifth street, N. W., Atlanta, for full details, and assistance desired, concerning the two Child Welfare magazine projects.

School Named.

"A new elementary school in Washington, D. C., has been named in honor of Mrs. Phoebe A. Hearst, cofounder with Alice McLellan Birney of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers. A school in San Diego, Cal., was named for Mrs. Birney last fall, these two being the first schools named for the founders of this organization.

"Nineteen-thirty and 1931 delinquent associations are reminded to send dues covering the membership of the past year to the state treasurer, Mrs. Jere Wells, Route 2, Holly-Oaks, Atlanta, in order to remain on the state mailing list.

"Bradley, in the second district, is the newest association of the Georgia congress, having organized recently with 38 members, and has sent the first 15-cent per capita dues required under the new by-laws.

"Joseph Humphries association in the fifth district plans to have a year-round active association, holding the monthly meetings during the summer in the homes of some of the members."

In All the Sacred Experiences of Life We Are Alone. We Cannot Alter Any Life or Control the Currents of Any Heart But Our Own.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

I hate my step-mother and I am making life miserable for my father, for her and for myself. I cannot truthfully say that she has ever given me cause to hate her but she is getting from my father what my poor dead mother wanted and could never get. He was stingy with my mother. He never even allowed her to have enough money to dress decently, while my step-mother has fine clothes and plenty of them. He wouldn't go out with my mother to a movie or to a party and he will go with my step-mother anywhere, any time. The awful injustice of the thing makes my blood boil. It is such a delicate matter that I won't discuss it with my father. I have the feeling that mother would turn over in her grave if I exposed her heart to him. I hope he and his wife will see this letter. Please give me some good advice. ALICE R. B.

ANSWER:

Dear child, your indignation is perfectly natural. Any child would resent the circumstances you describe. What is natural is not necessarily right; right or wrong, these are facts that your indignation cannot alter nor your resentment eliminate. It remains then for you to take a philosophical attitude toward them and to reckon with them as they are.

There is a classic joke about the way a man dances to the tune of a second wife. Probably many reasons account for it. He may be remorseful about his selfishness with the first one. He may be older and less concerned with his business affairs, therefore freer to play. He may be married to a more congenial spirit. None of these things reflects on the dead wife. They are phases of the inscrutable mysteries of life.

As a general rule our loved ones accept the valuation we put upon ourselves. If a wife is unselfish, abnegative, dependent, a man treats her accordingly, unless he be a rare spirit. If a woman asks for clothes and beseeches her husband to go out with her he naturally denies or grants the request according to his ideas of what is fitting. If she assumes that her right is to buy what she wants and assumes that her husband will go with her where she wants to go and claims rights and privileges in their marriage she usually gets them. There are exceptions to all general rules. Some men are so mean and selfish and stingy that thy never give in and give up. They are exceptions.

Most marriages continue as they begin. It is as easy to spoil a husband as it is to spoil a baby. Wise wives know that and act accordingly. Your mother was evidently one of the unselfish spirits who gave her life in yielding service to her husband and children. While she lived her husband didn't appreciate it and when she died he felt regret.

You will never know just how your mother felt about your father's attitude. She probably accepted it as we all accept the disappointments we meet at the hands of our loved ones, with quiet resignation. If she loved him, and I assume she did, her love was paramount and the dresses and the parties were only petty, paltry disappointments.

"They are so still—the dead! In silence deep,
As all the soundless depths of time they hold
Their peace; by them is never secret told

Don't worry about your mother. She would have your father to be happy and you too, would have him happy.

The step-mother is not responsible for his failure, so it is not fair to make her pay the fine for it. If she can elicit from him what your mother did not, or could not, it is to her credit, not to her discredit. Mind you, her failure to make your father happy would be be as hard for you to endure as her success. Then don't punish her and yourself by jealousy for a lost cause, nor by vindictiveness against your father.

After all is said and done, each of us is responsible for his life. Each of us must stand alone in all the sacred relationships of life. In birth, in marriage, and in death we are alone. When we are born defective we alone must bear that burden. When we are married unwisely we alone must bear the consequences. When we die surrounded by our loved ones we go into eternity alone. You couldn't bear your mother's cross while she lived and now that she is dead there is no cross to bear. You would not rob your father of his second chance at happiness and his second chance to succeed where he had formerly failed. You cannot rob him of it but you can mar his happiness. You would not refuse an innocent woman the right to a happy marriage because of jealousy for another. You have it in your power to poison her happiness.

If you accomplished what animal instinct suggested there would be no satisfaction in it. Only a ild animal delights in having destroyed what he does not care to assimilate. Leave off the thoughts about the injustice done your mother, leave off the thoughts about your father's failure and his shortcomings, leave off the thoughts of the success of the second wife and turn your thoughts into your own life. For that, and that alone, you are responsible. Fr that, and that alone, you must give account here, and hereafter.

If you discover that lifei n your father's home is intolerable get out and make your living and secure another home. Life is too short and too precious to be consumed with the fires of hate, hate which destroys happiness and peace of mind. Life may be full of adventures and pleasant interludes if one will get out and find them. It is useless and wicked to sit at home and fret about the things one cannot alter.

I heard a woman say recently that a friend of hers was living on hate and she added: "Once you get a soul accustomed to that diet nothing else will satisfy." Don't let yourself get accustomed to a diet of hate. Take steps to remove yourself from the scene of it, if you cannot conquer it where you are. Not that I believe you can run away from hate. The seat of it is in the heart and it will go with you no matter where you go. But if you cannot conquer it in your own heart you can, at least, take it where it will not spoil three lives.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

SMALL FOLKS WITH BIG APPETITES.

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Who fain would run for strength must eat,
—Cocky the Road Runner.

In the blind close to the nest of Cocky the Road Runner sat Farmer Brown's Boy. It was terribly hot in there and he never had been more uncomfortable in his life, but not once did he think of going back to the ranch. He was too much interested in that queer nursery right in front of him. To begin with, there was one egg and four babies, each apparently of different age.

"It is certain," thought he, "that these Road Runners are not like most birds in their family matters. Most birds lay all their eggs before sitting on them to hatch them. It must be that the Road Runners don't do that or all the young would be of a size. One of those youngsters is almost ready to leave the nest now, and one hasn't been out of the shell more than a day or so. That certainly is a funny arrangement. I wonder if that is so that Cocky and his mate will have only one at a time to worry over when it is time to leave the nest. It is when they start out to use their legs that the real dangers begin for these little fellows. As long as they stay in the nest they are safe, for the spine of that cactus must be absolute protection for them. Hello, here comes someone."

It was Mrs. Cocky scrambling up to the nest and paying no more attention to those sharp spines than if they didn't exist. Held crosswise in her bill was a small lizard with a long slim tail. The biggest baby opened a big mouth and mother promptly stuffed that lizard in head first. Down it went, all but the tail. Then it seemed to stick. Mrs. Cocky appeared to take no notice of this. She gave a few minutes of attention to the others and then hurriedly departed. There were three other hungry mouths to be fed, and that food must first be caught. If you ever have seen a lizard run you realize that catching enough lizards for four hungry babies means a lot of running and lively work.

This time she was gone only a few minutes. Perhaps Cocky had met her and given her his catch. Farmer Brown's Boy heard her snapping her bill and making a soft rattling noise. Then she scrambled up to the nest and this time she had a small snake, which she gave to the second oldest. The tip of the lizard's tail was still hanging from the bill of the one she had fed first, but it disappeared just as she left again, and by the time she returned again that youngster was apparently as hungry as ever and all ready for another. He didn't get it, however, for Mrs. Cocky knew who had been fed and who hadn't.

Once she brought a small mouse and once a big beetle. To the smallest one she brought a caterpillar. But lizards seemed to be the favorite item on the bill of fare, and there was one time that morning when the two oldest sat looking very uncomfortable, each with a lizard's tail hanging from his bill. They looked so funny that Farmer Brown's Boy almost laughed aloud.

When he could stand the heat no longer he slipped out of the blind while Mr. and Mrs. Cocky were away hunting. He had lost count of the number of lizards that had been brought, not to mention other things.

"I've wondered what use lizards are," said he to himself as he made his way back to the ranch, "but now I know. If there are many little people around here with appetites such as those young Road Runners have I am sorry for the lizard family."

He had left the blind standing and for several days he made use of it, and he was on hand when the oldest youngster left the nest to try out his legs. It was an exciting event and Mrs. Cocky was as nervous as you can imagine. In the nest he had hardly known what his legs were for, but once on the ground it didn't take him long to find out, and he was soon racing after a beetle in a way that gave promise that he would grow to be as great runner as his father.

YOUTH INJURED IN DIVE PARTIALLY PARALYZED

Charles Allison, 19, of 823 North Highland avenue, N. E., who was taken to Georgia Baptist hospital Saturday with a fractured vertebrae in his neck, sustained when he dived too deeply in the swimming pool at Piedmont park Sunday, was found to be paralyzed from his chest down. Physicians in charge said Sunday night that it was too soon to tell whether the condition was permanent or merely a transitory phase.

According to the explanation he gave his father Saturday night, Allison was injured when he threw himself off balance at the start of a dive to avoid striking another swimmer. Out of control when he hit the water, he was unable to check his plunge, and hit the bottom of the pool. His father, Charles H. Allison, of the Eberhart Dental Supply Company, said that Charles was a good swimmer.

Before Her Baby Came

"My mother gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I came to womanhood. I was so nervous that I couldn't rest at night. After I took your Compound I felt much better. Then before my baby was born I took the Compound again. I felt strong all through the period. I was never in bed a day. I could rest good at night too." — Mrs. H. L. Buell, Marietta, Ohio.

GRAND HOTEL

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

He himself saw her as a beautiful woman, undeniably beautiful, even though the paint on her cheeks began to run. Her neck, above all, reflected twice over in the side mirrors, was incomparably delicate and flexible. Grusinskaya fixed her eyes on her face as though on the face of an enemy. With horror she saw the telltale years, the wrinkles, the flabbiness, the fatigue, the withering; her temples were smooth no longer, the corners of her mouth were disfigured, her eyelids, under the blue paint, as creased, as crumpled tissue paper. Another fit of shuddering, more violent than the previous one in the street, came over her while she looked at herself. She tried to bandage her lips but could not succeed. She hurried across the room and hastily turned out the uncompromising light suspended from the ceiling and turned on the table lamp, but even this did not lend any warmth. With a few impatient movements she tore off her costume except for her tights, went to the radiator and leaned against the gray-colored pipes. She scarcely thought at all as she did so. She only desired warmth. Enough, she thought, enough. Never again. Finished. Enough. She whispered her irrevocable decision in every language, her teeth chattering all the while. She went into the bathroom and held her hands under the hot tap and let the warmth flow over her arteries till it began to hurt. She took a friction brush and rubbed her shoulders with it. Then, suddenly, she left off in a fit of disgust, came back shivering and went straight across the room to the telephone. She had to put her lips twice to the telephone before she could speak.

"Tea," she said. "A lot of tea and a lot of sugar."

Then she went to the looking glass and looked in it with gloomy intensity. Her body, however, was of unique and faultless beauty. It was the body of a 16-year-old ballet pupil, which the severe and disciplined work of a lifetime had preserved unaltered. Suddenly the hatred she felt for herself changed into tenderness. She clasped her shoulders and stroked their smooth sheen. She kissed the hollow of her right arm. She bent her head down and kissed her poor slim sinewy knees as though they were sick children whom she loved. "Bjednaiaia, malenkaia," she murmured to them. It was an endearment of her early days. Poor little one, it meant.

Unconsciously Gaigern, between the curtains, showed pity and admiration in his face. He was embarrassed by what he saw. Yet this was really a secondary consideration. It was the helplessness, the lost and tremulous despair of this pitiful Grusinskaya as she stood before the looking glass, that impressed him most. It inspired a painful sympathy and made him flush to his ears. Though he was a crook, ready to carry off stolen pearls worth 500,000 marks in his pocket, Gaigern was far from being inhuman.

He felt a compelling desire to console this poor lonely woman—to do anything to put a stop to her terrible shuddering and her whispering of almost crazed despair.

The waiter knocked at the outer door. Grusinskaya put on her dressing gown, and went to the door in her worn slippers. The tea was discreetly handed in and Grusinskaya locked the door behind the retreating waiter. It has come to this, she thought. She poured out a cup of tea and took a packet of veronal from the bedside table. She swallowed a tablet, drank some tea, and then took a second. She got up and began to walk rapidly to and fro across the room, four paces this way, four paces that.

What is the use of it all? she thought. What is the use of living? What is there to wait for? Why endure the torture? Oh, I am tired. You don't know, any of you, how tired I am. I promised myself to leave off when the time came. Tiens, the time has come. Am I to wait till I am hissed off the stage? It is time malenkaia—poor little one. Gru is not going to go to Vienna tomorrow. Gru gives up. Gru is going to sleep. You don't know how cold it is to be famous. Not a soul to care for me, not one. They all live on me. Nobody lives for me. Nobody. Not one. I know no one who is not either vain or anxious. I have always been alone. And who troubles about a Grusinskaya who dances no more? Finished. No, I shall not parade about Monte Carlo, stiff and fat and old like the other famous women who have grown old. "You should have seen me in the days when the Grand Duke Sergei was still alive!" No, that is not for me. And where else am I to go? To Tremezzo to grow orchids, to keep two white peacocks, to have money troubles and to be alone, utterly alone, and to rusticate and die? That is what it comes to at last—to die. Nijinsky is in an asylum waiting to die. Poor Nijinsky! Poor Gru! I am not going to wait. The moment as come—now—now—now—now—

She stood still and listened as though she heard her name called. The veronal was already humming drowsily in her ears and its narcotic influence subdued her to a welcome indifference. Gaston, she thought as she went to the table. Dear Gaston, you were good to me once. How young you were! And how long ago it is! Now you are a minister, fat and bearded and sleek. Adieu, Gaston. Adieu pour jamais, n'estce pas? There is such an easy way of growing no older.

Grusinskaya poured out another cup of tea. She was now posing a little, playing in sweet sadness a little tragic scene. There was a manner and a grace in her despairing resolve. With a rapid gesture she took the bottle of veronal tablets and emptied them all into her tea and then waited for them to dissolve. It took too long and she tapped them impatiently with the teaspoon. Then getting up she went once more to the looking glass and began unconsciously powdering her face, which was of a sudden beaded with cold sweat. Her lips ceased trembling and assumed the fixed stage smile. She put her hands in front of her face and whispered: "God! God! God!" She went over unsteadily to the table and tasted the cup of tea with the tip of the spoon. The taste was very bitter. She dropped in one lump of sugar after another with the sugar tongs and waited for them to melt. This took a minute or perhaps longer. In the stillness the clock and the watch raced each other breathlessly.

Grusinskaya got up and went to the door on to the balcony. Her breath came with difficulty and she had a longing to look at the sky. She drew back the lace curtain and collided with a shadowy figure.

"Please do not be alarmed, madame," Gaigern said with a bow.

Grusinskaya's first movement was not one of alarm, but—oddly enough—of shame. She drew her kimono more closely round her and looked mutely at Gaigern as though deeply puzzled. What is this? she thought dreamily. Surely I have been through this before? Perhaps she even felt a certain relief at this postponement of the draught of veronal. She stood thus gazing at Gaigern for nearly a minute while her finely penciled arched eyebrows met above the bridge of her nose. Her lips still trembled, and her breath was drawn sharply between them in little gasps.

Gaigern, too, felt his teeth beginning to chatter, but he controlled them perfectly. He had never been in such extreme danger as at this moment. All his previous enterprises—there had been only three or four of them—had been carefully prepared and so cautiously executed that not even the faintest suspicion had fallen on him. And now there he stood, caught redhanded in another person's bedroom with pearls worth 500,000 marks in his pocket, and nothing lay between him and imprisonment but the little white push button surmounted by the enameled tablet requesting you to ring twice for the valet. An access of sheer fury seized him, but he did not allow it to escape him. He kept it under, till it turned to strength and calm. It cost him a tremendous effort not to strike the woman down.

Meanwhile he made his bow. He might have made a wild dash for the hotel facade. He might have struck Grusinskaya dead or silenced her with threats. It was the prompting of his good nature that chose a bow, an unpremeditated but courteous bow, instead of murder and violence. He did not know that he had gone a bluish white under the eyes. Remotely he was aware even of danger as an enjoyment, like intoxication or the bottomless abyss of a dream.

"Who are you? How did you come here?" Grusinskaya asked in German. Her tone was almost polite.

"Pardon me, gnadige Frau, I stole into your room. I am—— it is terrible that you should have found me here. You came in earlier than usual. It is my bad luck. I can give you no explanation.

Fourteen Golf Stars Seek Place in 'Open' at East Lake Today; Crackers Trounce Lookouts, 11-2, To Enter Second Place Tie

Saturday night as a time for night baseball games is out—almost. While some of the Cracker Owners, Inc., are not entirely convinced, the general sentiment inside and outside the park is that good old tub-night is a bust as an occasion for night baseball games.

The first Saturday night game drew about 3,000. The second one drew 2,000 folks. In the latter instance the club had just won two games in a row and as an extra added attraction sofa pillows were distributed to the lady visitors. Games on other nights have drawn upwards of 5,000.

LITTLE ROCK AN EXCEPTION.

Bob Allen, owner of the depressed Vols, the man who first introduced night baseball into the Southern league last year in his Little Rock park, had interesting comments to make on the phenomenon.

"Everybody in the business told me Saturday night was a poor night for baseball," he said. "They showed me figures to prove that a single game or a double-header would draw better Saturday afternoon than Saturday night. Yet I went on and tried it in Little Rock and it proved our best night.

"But conditions here seem different. You just cannot tell about cities and people. No universal rule can be made that will apply to all localities."

Perhaps Little Rock does not observe the ancient rite of the Saturday night tub. No doubt the Little Rock counter attractions on Saturday night are negligible. One should not condemn Little Rock for attending Saturday night baseball games. Little Rock simply is original.

MORE LADIES' NIGHTS?

A radical school of showmanship is growing up in the baseball business, they say. Ladies' nights—and days—have been so popular that some club owners think EVERY night should be ladies' night—or day.

Hollywood long ago went after the feminine trade. They have made their screen productions appealing to women, knowing that the ruder sex must tag along where the girls lead them.

Far be it from me to suggest that this policy explains the transparency of the current Hollywood plots and the lack of subtlety in their interpretations. I have no idea of starting anything.

So baseball club owners are at last coming around to the policy of making a play for the feminine trade.

And the only way they can do it is to offer them a bargain. Numbering the players was the first step, of course. Souvenir autographed photos of the star players may be the next.

THREE GREAT ATHLETES.

Vance Maree, Earl Dunlap, Tom Jones—the last of the heroes of Tech's victory over California in the Rose Bowl—walk out of Georgia Tech today with diplomas in their fists.

Those who have followed Tech's football fortunes these last three years will feel sadness at the parting. As sophomores those three stalwarts walked modestly with the Yellow Jackets in their moments of triumph. They were oblivious of the fact that their deeds on the gridiron were epochal, admirable, stupendous.

And they went down into the valley of defeat with the Yellow Jackets with the same firm tread. They learned what it meant to lose and how to lose.

Maree, Dunlap and Jones are leaving Tech with scholastic and athletic honors far beyond their pigskin deeds in permanent value.

Yet they will be recalled whenever men gather on an autumn evening to talk as three great football men who won and lost—and won in losing.

Jones Family Is Happy As Bobby Comes Home

By Ed Danforth.

Bobby Jones came home from Hollywood yesterday.

No past reunion with his family after long absence on a tournament foray was happier for him than this one. For three months he has been making and remaking golf shots before the stern lens of movie cameras. Daily he has wielded his clubs with a regiment of technical men, directors and extras breathing on his neck. Long delays characteristic of film production have tested his patience.

No wonder then he was glad to get home and rest.

"Making those pictures was the hardest work I ever did," Bobby said yesterday. "It seemed we never would finish the series. As far as I know I never will make another picture."

Bobby was glad to hear that his first picture had made a decidedly favorable impression on Atlanta audiences.

"I was wondering how my voice would sound in long speeches," was his comment, "and I was uncertain how that part of it would go over."

Bobby broke into the interview to ask what was the matter with his Crackers.

"When I left here we had the best team in the league," he said, "or at least we thought so. Now it looks as if we have just one of the good ones."

Bobby plans to go back to his desk in the law office today. He will attend the national open golf championship in Toledo July 2-4 as a spectator and write a review of the tournament for a syndicate.

"Will you attend the Stribling-Schmeling fight?" he was asked.

"You bet," was the reply.

HUDSON TO SEEK COLLEGE CROWN

Scott Hudson, Jr., captain of the Georgia Tech golf team, has entered the national collegiate golf tournament, to be played on the Olympia field course in Chicago, June 22, it was learned Sunday. Hudson will leave for Chicago immediately after the southern amateur next week in Chattanooga.

Two other southern golfers are entered and it is likely that four or five others will enter before the entries close.

George Bush, sensational Tulane youngster, will spend a week with Hudson here, and the two will enter the southern amateur next week along with Wilbur Oakes, another member of the Tech team. The trio will go to the national tourney from Chattanooga.

STARS OF GOLF TO SEEK PLACE IN 'OPEN' FIELD

By Roy White.

Qualifying rounds in the fifth district sectional eliminations for the national open golf championship will be played at 9 o'clock this morning on the old East Lake Country Club course. With one place available, 14 entries will go the 36-hole route today, playing 18 in the morning and another 18 in the afternoon, with the low man to enter the title quest at Inverness, Toledo, on July 2-4.

Keith Conway will be in charge of the district play, and will be assisted by Frank Ball, East Lake professional.

Errie Ball, assistant pro at East Lake, and Howard Beckett, Capital City Country Club professional, will carry Atlanta's colors into the qualifying round today against an unusually strong friend from various sections of the southeast.

THREE AMATEURS.

Three of the 14 entries for today are amateurs. They are Sam Perry, of Birmingham, Ala., former southern amateur and southern collegiate champion; James Tupper, of Nashville, Tenn., and Corporal Clyde De Pishon, of Parris Island, S. C.

The players will start their battle for the one vacant place in threesomes, the first to tee off at 9 o'clock and the others to follow at 10-minute intervals.

GOSS SHOOTS WELL.

Danny Goss set a hot pace in the practice rounds Sunday over the old course. He carded a 74 in the morning and came back with another 74 during the afternoon for a 36-hole total of 148 strokes, one over the totals which sent Charley Hall and Eddie Miller to the open from this district last year.

Goss played in an afternoon foursome with Howard Beckett, Frank Stevenson and Doyle Smith. Stevenson and Smith each carded 75's and Beckett had a 77. It was one of the best foursomes of the day, and produced some excellent shots. Three of the foursome equalled par on the back nine.

Errie Ball, another Atlanta hopeful, and Frank Ball, East Lake pro, lost a one-hole decision to Sam Perry and Charley Hall over 18 holes. Frank and his young nephew were three up at the turn, but the veteran Hall and the promising amateur Perry came back strongly on the back nine and won out.

Eugene McCarthy, an uncle of the well-known Maurice McCarthy, had a good round Sunday morning, as did Charley Gray, of Augusta.

Nation's Stars Seek Golf Honors.

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—More than 1,000 golfers from all parts of the country will play 36 holes of medal play golf tomorrow in 20 widely-scattered districts in the hope of gaining one of the 97 vacant places in the national open championship. The open will be played at the Inverness Club, Toledo, Ohio, starting July 2.

The open is limited to a starting field of 150 players. This year exemptions from qualifying round play have been granted to 53 players, leaving 97 to be competed for in the nation-wide qualifying round tomorrow.

The exemptions were granted to the 31 players who finished in the first 30 and ties in the open last year at Interlachen; to various foreign players, and to several American professionals who competed in the British open at Carnoustie.

All told 1,097 players have been entered for the 97 vacant places. Chicago leads the list with 177 with New York second with 154. Fifteen places have been awarded the Chicago district and 13 to New York.

Better Scores Seen For British Tourney

PORTMARNOCK, Ireland, June 7. (UP)—With fair weather promised for tomorrow the 114 competitors in the British women's golf tournament hoped for better scores in the second 18-hole qualifying round which will decide the 64 competitors for match play.

Heavy rain and stormy winds sent the scores soaring in the opening qualifying play yesterday with Miss Enid Wilson, a former champion, the only player to break 80. Miss Wilson, playing in the rain but without the wind which handicapped late starters, played brilliantly to turn in a 75.

No competition was scheduled today but many of the players practiced on nearby courses.

Smith Enters Finals Of Handball Tourney

Horace Smith uncorked some of the most dazzling handball of the season when he won his semi-final match of the winners bracket against George Gardner, 21-10 and 21-7. This places Smith in the finals of the winners bracket to play the winner of the Broyles-Baum match which is scheduled some time this week.

Boston was eliminated from the running when Buck Cheves trimmed him, 21-18 and 21-10, in the losers bracket. Cheves also eliminated Rex Morris from the running by winning two best out of three matches.

In another match of the losers bracket Mutt Merritt eliminated Harry Sanders by winning two out of three games.

Conference Called To Debate Referee

STRIBLING'S TRAINING CAMP, GEAUGA LAKE, Ohio June 7.—The Cleveland boxing commission, which will be affiliated with the N. B. A. in a few days, will meet Wednesday at an hour to be named later to confer with Pa Stribling and Joe Jacobs, managers respectively of W. L. Stribling and Max Schmeling, regarding the referee.

The committee will submit a list and each manager will select one. The final selection will be announced the afternoon of July 3.

Into Action.

The crews are warming up at Poughkeepsie for what should be the greatest regatta ever held, barring none. Cornell, Syracuse, Columbia and Washington alone will give you all the thrills one's system can carry without breaking down. And there are others.

Then on Wednesday night, at Ebbets field, the man-eating mammoths and the mauling mastodons will be unleashed in the tremendous persons of Primo Carnera, the terror of the Tiber, and Pat Redmond, the Tipperary Troglodyte.

This battle may be terrible, good or funny. It will have little to do with any heavyweight championship, or any other championship, which doesn't involve displacement and human poundage.

The British Ryder cup team and the United States contingent are starting across the Atlantic this week, and the American Davis cup team will be on its way to London and the Wimbledon show.

Then there is Miss Maureen Orcutt in a lone battle against the best of the British women golfers in search of a title no American has ever won.

And then, later on in the week, Twenty Grand and Jamestown will settle the big argument now raging in the turf game. This is about all the action one week can hold, when you consider also the two big league races, which are now veering toward the survival of the few pennant people who actually belong around the top.

Still Better.

The battle that broke loose in the recent British open will be even greater at Inverness. In addition to those who took part at Carnoustie there will also be Walter Hagen, Leo Diegel, Bill Mehlhorn, Harry Cooper, George Von Elm, Ed Dudley, Al Espinosa, Willie Macfarlane, John Golden, Bobby Cruickshank and 10 or 12 others good enough to make anybody hustle.

The British open has a shade in the way of tradition, but the United States open carries the finest golf talent that any golf championship ever knew.

It will be especially keen this year, with British and all American forces combined.

The Battle at Portmarnock.

Miss Maureen Orcutt, of New Jersey, one of the best of all the women golfers in the United States, is now undertaking the hardest of all sport assignments.

This must be so, because she is trying something no American woman golfer ever put across—a victory in the British women's championship. From time to time such stars as Marion Hollins, Alexa Stirling, Edith Cummings, Glenna Collett and many others have tried and failed to break down this British barrier. Miss Collett reached the final frame twice, only to fall back. She went out in 34 against Joyce Wethered at St. Andrews, to stand 6 up, but finally lost to the brilliant closing charge of the English star.

It would not be surprising to see Enid Wilson a big factor in this tournament, as she has the power and the steadiness—the punch and the poise—and had needed only this added experience. Miss Orcutt is a fine golfer and a good competitor. But one against a big field is a terrific handicap.

The Davis Cup Chance.

The Davis cup chance is still slight, if Cochet is in good shape and anywhere near his best. If he isn't, the French have some trouble to face—quite a batch of trouble.

Borota will be an even choice against any American he faces—but no more. And Cochet's substitute will not be an even choice against Frank Shields.

The carnival at Wimbledon will give the better line on the situation, as the English have some first-class talent ready; so there is still time enough to wait a bit before any final summary is attempted.

Once Hack Wilson gets started, the Cubs will be an entirely different ball club. The Hack Wilson of 1930 was just about the most valuable single actor the game has known, when you figure the runs he scored and the runs he drove across. And, after all, this matter of runs is largely the final answer to any score.

'Speed' Is Password As Strib Flays Mates

Staff Correspondent.

STRIBLING'S TRAINING CAMP, GEAUGA LAKE, Ohio, June 7.—Speed was the password today as W. L. Stribling stepped seven fast rounds in the ring against six different mates here this afternoon.

The Georgia challenger for the heavyweight title worked against one welterweight and one middleweight in addition to three heavyweights and one light-heavyweight.

And they all showed just how the Georgian really is. Mickey Duggan, Cleveland middleweight, and Herbert Stribling each worked a round. This Herbert (Baby) Stribling is a real boxer. W. L. declares he is the fastest man in the ring he has ever faced. Duggan and Stribling were going fast, but W. L. kept after them.

STRIBLING'S exhibition in feinting the lighter, faster men into position and in boxing them when they chose to was really remarkable, considering the fact that the fight is three and a half weeks away. (Gosh, is that all?)

Gene Stanlon, Risko's stable mate, was en route to the camp today with two spar mates, but the car was wrecked on the wet road. One of the boys was slightly hurt. The wreck kept them from reaching camp, but "Pa" was glad of the opportunity to use light men.

W. L. treated two of his heavyweight opponents quite roughly indeed. Nathaniel Hogan, a tall heavyweight from Los Angeles, who is now in a Cleveland club, was almost knocked out Saturday. Today he was grabbing and holding and even then failed to escape a few hard jolts. "I believe I'll jus' go one roun'," said Nathaniel after his one round. So that was the end of Nathaniel. He'll be in the papers no more.

LIKES TIMING.

Sam Ward, a tall, tan boy, came out with the word that W. L.'s timing was better than it has been at any time during the training period and that he was also hitting harder.

"Say," said Sam Ward. "I'm hard to hit with a right but he nailed me with a right cross today that almost had me down in spite of those heavy gloves. And his left jab was hurting, too. He had it today."

Glenn Miller, Cleveland heavy, had to give up after a minute and a half, he was a technical kayo victim on Saturday and again today blows to the head and body had him out.

PA STILL HAPPY.

Pa Stribling was jubilant again today. He reiterated his statement of Saturday that he would never lay off again as long as he has this time, W. L. not having fought since December 12. Pa will keep W. L. in the ring often, even if he is the champion.

W. L. is doing road work regularly. He will start Monday on three miles per day. The next workout is slated for Wednesday and the first night workout Friday night under ultra violet ray lights.

The Striblings went to Akron today to visit the Goodyear plant. W. L. started a soccer game going between teams from New Bedford, Mass., and the Goodyear plant.

He was unable to fly back in the blimp because of the rain. Ohio weather in the spring is miserable. It let up raining during the workout, but the day was cold and damp.

WOMEN READY FOR GOLF PLAY

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va., June 7. (AP)—Her clubs polished and tested, Mrs. David Gaut, the Memphis veteran, tonight was prepared to start play tomorrow over the Princess Anne Country Club course here in quest of here fifth southern women's championship.

More than a hundred golfers from 16 states and the District of Columbia were ready to halt the bid of this grey-haired campaigner from the banks of the Mississippi who has won four southern crowns in the past eleven years.

For the first time golfers from West Virginia, Maryland and Washington are eligible, and entrants from these sections are expected to strengthen the quality of the field. This tournament also marks the first time in the 20-year history of the association that a woman's championship has been decided in Virginia. Tomorrow's 18-hole qualifying round will decide which 32 golfers will compete for the championship.

Match play Tuesday will divide the survivors into championship and first flights. The 36-hole championship match will be played Saturday.

Among those favored to offer Mrs. Gaut stern opposition are Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake, of New Orleans, who won in 1926 and 1928; Miss Margaret Maddox, of Atlanta, the 1929 champion; Mrs. Ruth Reymond, of New Orleans, the winner in 1927; Mrs. Helen Lowndes Lumpkin, of Atlanta; Miss Helen Waring, of Pinehurst; Mrs. Harry Dodge, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. Leon Solomon, of Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. Henan Rodwell, of Norfolk, and Mrs. Buford Scott, of Richmond.

The Middle Atlantic men's championship was contested over this course last week-end, and few of the women were able to play practice rounds. Mrs. Lake toured the course in 79 to establish a women's record. Women's par has been set at 76, four above the regulation for men.

TROJANS HEAD WEST.

TAITT, SHIRLEY AID MESSENGER WITH BIG BATS

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 7.—Again displaying their rare ability to play at their worst before their largest crowds, the Chattanooga Lookouts took a socking from Atlanta this afternoon at Engel stadium. The paid customers were 8,000 and the score was 11 to 2.

The victory and play around the Southern circuit sent the Crackers and the Lookouts into a four-way tie for second place, eight and a half games behind the flying Barons, with New Orleans and Memphis.

PITCHERS SUFFER.

It was a case of Chattanooga's six-man pitching staff being all used up with no one fresh to face the Crackers.

Accordingly, the big guns unlimbered to push one over in the first, two more in the fourth, ditto in the fifth and then showered the pastures with bingles in the sixth to rush six men across the home hassock.

Lefty Griffith started and lasted until Roy Carlyle had poled a homer out into the suburbs in the sixth and Autry had followed with a double into deep left.

NOT SO WELL.

Then Frank Ragland came along and did a poor job of getting out of the hole, letting four more men come prancing across in addition to finishing up Autry's tally.

Griffith got two out in the first, then Taitt poked a puny pop fly just back of second. It was a fluke. Mule Shirley slapped one right behind the flag pole in the center field corner. There wasn't any fluke about that. The ball bounced right over Scarritt and into the farthest corner.

Mule was stepping with all he had, But Wingo made a great throw to Kingdon and Wes rifled it to Kenna and the Mule was snuffed out at the plate in a very close play.

LOOKOUTS TIE.

Atlanta went ahead in the fourth, Taitt singling and Shirley doubling to right to score him. Shirley went to third on Carlyle's out and scored after the catch of Autry's fly to left.

OFF IN FRONT.

Two more came over in the fifth. Ryan walked and Messenger sacrificed him down. Barnes dropped a single in left and Ryan took third. Sheehan forced Barnes, Ryan scoring, and then Taitt tripled to center, sending Sheehan across.

Then Ragland came along. He walked Lamotte and hit Ryan. Then he walked Messenger to force Autry in.

Red Barnes ruined the entire works by poling a three-bagger to deep center, cleaning the paths. Two went down. Then Shirley singled to score Red. Carlyle popped up to end it.

East Lake Course Offered for Playoff

East Lake Country Club has extended the use of its two golf courses to the leaders of the Georgia-Florida Golf league to play off the tie match for the championship. The invitation was issued by R. E. Hodgson, chairman of the golf committee at East Lake.

Thomasville and Valdosta finished the season in a tie for first place and it has been practically agreed to play off the championship match on a neutral course. George Feagle is captain of the Valdosta team and Scotie Beverly is leader of the Thomasville team.

A definite answer from the south Georgia golf teams has not been received.

Indians Continue Great Comeback To Lead Major League Clubs

LATZO REACHES CITY FOR CLASH TUESDAY NIGHT

Pete Will Drill Today for Bout With Battling Bozo.

Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion of the world, arrived in Atlanta Sunday afternoon and will work out this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the Georgia Power Club on Piedmont avenue in preparation for his fight Tuesday night with Battling Bozo at the city auditorium.

Pa Stribling, promoter of the fight and manager of Bozo, will arrive in the city Tuesday by plane from the Stribling training camp at Geauga Lake, Ohio.

Bozo has been in Atlanta several days and is ready, except for a brief workout at 3:30 o'clock today.

Latzo, who opened his athletic career as a baseball player and was with Newark in the International league for a while, soon turned his attention to the prize fight game and worked his way to the top to win the welterweight title. He has moved up in the light heavyweight class, after losing his crown to Joe Dundee in 1927.

Ted Goodrich and Spike Webb, two local favorites, have been signed for the semi-windup. Goodrich is making a determined effort to regain the prestige he once held in the welterweight class. The two fought to a draw in their last fight here.

Tickets have been placed on sale at the Candler Building Soda Company and at the Wilmot hotel. Reservations can be made by calling Jackson 1360.

Ladies accompanied by a male escort will be admitted for $1.

MACKS CLOSE; CARDINALS SET NATIONAL PACE

Only Six Teams Better Than .500; Batting Marks Slump.

By Hugh S. Fullerton Jr.,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

The comeback of the Cleveland Indians continued to furnish the big news in the major leagues last week as the team which was losing games without a break not so long ago swept through to the week's best record with only one interruption in its string of victories. The Indians, running their string to 10 games in a row, had a record of five victories and one defeat for the week which ended Saturday.

The nearest thing to this record was that of the St. Louis Cardinals, who showed the way for the National league with six games won and two lost.

The Philadelphia Athletics, who apparently can't lose two games in succession, recorded five victories to two defeats.

The Chicago Cubs and last-place Cincinnati Reds fought a close battle for the runner-up post in the National league, Chicago winning four games and losing two and the Reds taking five and dropping three.

Slugging fell off to a large extent during the week. St. Louis led the two leagues in scoring with 46 runs and in hitting with 94 safeties.

Cleveland's 43 runs, which led the American league, beat out Cincinnati by one. The Reds collected 87 hits while Boston had the high American league total, 82. The Philadelphia Athletics hammered out seven home runs to lead both circuits.

Last week's major league records follow:

Crackers Set Pace In Southern Loop.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 7.—(AP)—Hard hitting and air-tight defensive playing were combined by Atlanta's Crackers last week to set the pace in the Southern association.

The Crackers won six of eight games—the best showing of any club—led the league in hitting and scoring with 96 safeties and 59 runs, made only seven errors in eight games and drove out eight home runs, three by Roy Carlyle, home run king of the league.

Y Swimming School Opening Is Set Today

Starting Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock, some 200 boys will assemble at the Atlanta Y. M. C. A. for their first lesson in learning to swim. The Y. M. C. A. secretaries have canvassed the city schools and have invited every boy who is unable to swim to take the free lessons. As a result the boys have been stampeding the "Y" for the past week registering for the classes.

The association swimming instructors will have charge of the classes of non-swimmers and will make every effort to teach each boy who registers how to swim. Only the methods that have been adjudged the best by swimming authorities will be used.

Although registration lists closed Saturday, "Y" officials have decided to accept boys at 9 o'clock Monday morning.

COACH RESIGNS.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—(AP)—The resignation of John D. O'Reilly, a member of the coaching staff of Georgetown University since 1914, has been accepted by Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, S. J., president of the institution. O'Reilly declined to comment on his action. He has coached Georgetown football, basketball, baseball and track teams.

SUTTER EVENS GRANT SERIES IN THREE SETS

"Bitsy" Unable To Get Pace in Final Exhibition.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 7.—(AP)—Clifford Sutter, New Orleans, former Tulane ace, turned the tables on Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, southern tennis champion, in the second of their exhibition matches here, winning today at 6-2, 6-1, 6-1 after losing Saturday.

Soft drop shots and fast back-hand drives carried Sutter to victory today. Grant, whose sheer gameness took him through yesterday's match, was unable to muster the speed that marked his play in the first match.

Heavyweight Clash Features Ring Card

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—That famous "minor-league" heavyweight, Pat Redmond, tangles with Primo Carnera at Ebbetts field, Brooklyn, Wednesday night in what promises to be the most entertaining of the nation's fistic offerings this week.

Redmond is the emergency opponent Jimmy Johnston secured to meet Carnera when the big Italian was restrained by federal injunction from fighting Jack Sharkey or any other major opponent. In point of size, Redmond, who has done all of his fighting around here in the small clubs, is a close match for the big Italian. The Irishman stands six feet four and weighs around 230 pounds.

Boston, New Haven, Cleveland and Hollywood, Cal., have the best offerings among other fistic centers. At Braves field, Boston, tomorrow, Babe Hunt, veteran Ponca City, Okla., heavyweight, tackles Paul Swiderski, hard-hitting boy from Syracuse. At Hollywood on Friday, Speedy Dado, speedy Los Angeles featherweight, meets Roy Montyoa, of San Diego. New Haven's show on Wednesday features Kid Chocolate, Cuban featherweight, in a 10-round bout with Steve Smith, of Bridgeport, Conn. These boys have met twice before and Chocolate won the decision each time. At Cleveland on Wednesday, Billy Wallace, Cleveland lightweight, encountered the Philippine slugger, Lope Tenorio.

STARS ENTER CLASSIC.

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP)—The classic, which is expected to have a gross value of $95,000, the richest three-year-old event in the world this season, will be decided at Arlington park July 18.

Phil Perkins Takes Long Island Crown

Fire Insurance FACTS
"Hotter 'n Blazes"
—By Wood Burns—

Well, friends (and enemies, too), ever'body what's working is got a job—that may sound foolish but it ain't.

And the job o' your Stock Fire Insurance Agent is to study out the details o' what you need in the way o' insurance—and he's done it.

So you see him and find out what he's learnt — then you tell him about what you laughingly calls your property whilst you pay the monthly notes.

He'll tell you exactly what amount o' insurance your stuff requires—not a nickel too much or too little. Then one fair cost an' that's all.

Yours, W. B.

THE PARADE OF THE MANIKINS

Opening day in the grand salon of one of the fashionable Parisian dressmaking shops. Dazzling lights, gorgeous draperies, gilded chairs, flashing jewels . . . Behind the miniature stage a bevy of beautiful manikins—in velvet, satin, chiffon and lace. The curtains part. One by one they emerge, pirouette, descend the steps—and before you sweeps a magnificent array of the latest fashions!

Perhaps it has never been your good fortune to witness one of these affairs. But the imaginative mind need not go to such distant places to learn what is new and charming in the world of personal adornment . . . or what is useful and modern for the home . . . or tasty and wholesome for the table.

Let the day's advertisements pass in review! For in word and picture they, like manikins, display before you the latest and best things from the realm of merchandise. Studying the advertisements is not only very interesting, but it enables you to shop with greater assurance of getting exactly what you want—and the greatest value for your money!

TARZAN AT THE EARTH'S CORE No. 7

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Steadily the 0-220 forged southward. At length the glow of Pellucidar's central sun was plainly visible ahead. The nature of the landscape below was changing rapidly. The barren land had fallen astern. The ship had crossed a range of wooded hills and now before it lay a great forest. A forest that stretched on and on and which, strangely, seemed to curve upward until it was lost in the distant haze. This was indeed Pellucidar, the world within our world and Jason Gridley's dream had come true.

Numerous streams emptied into a large river and the well-watered plain was rich with vegetation. Nowhere was there sight of beast or man. "If this is Pellucidar," said Tarzan of the Apes, "it looks good to me. I wonder if there is any game nearby? Let us land, Captain." Slowly the great ship came to earth as air was taken into her lower vacuum tanks. Ladders were let down but it was thought best that no one venture far from the ship, since they could only guess what sort of creatures inhabited this virgin continent.

Officers and men, with the exception of the watch, now turned in for much needed sleep. Every man had worked at high pitch for the last three days. But Tarzan could not close his eyes. The temptation to explore this strange land was strong within him. Perhaps there was wild game, different from his native jungle. At last he could not restrain his impatience to leave the ship. He told himself he would be gone but a few hours and his absence would never be noticed. Like a schoolboy on vacation, he proceeded to put his desire into action.

Discarding the clothes that had only annoyed him since he had joined the expedition, Tarzan came from his cabin and dropped to the ground below, an almost naked and primitive warrior. Armed with hunting knife, spear, bow and arrows, the ape-man also carried the long rope which since childhood he had preferred to the weapons of civilization. The officer on duty at the time, saw him depart and watched with genuine admiration as the black-haired jungle lord moved swiftly, with easy grace, across the open plain and disappeared in the forest.

By Bill Key, Radio Reporter.

GOOD MORNING, EVERYBODY: The Stromberg-Carlson Company will announce in its radio hour tonight the first Stromberg-Carlson prize contest, in which Stromberg-Carlson receivers will be awarded. In succeeding weeks further announcements will be made.

Entrants will be asked to go to a dealer's store for application blanks. At the store they must fill out the blanks with their names and addresses. Each contestant is asked to write an essay of 100 words or less on "Why There Is Nothing Finer Than a Stromberg-Carlson."

Captain R. Henderson Bland, noted poet and actor, will inaugurate a series of programs to be known as "Moods and Memories" with orchestral background, over an NBC network beginning today. The series will be broadcast daily with the exception of Sunday, and will be heard from 10:15 until 10:30 a. m. Captain Bland trained under Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree as an elocutionist. He is director of the Poet's Club in London, a representative of the Ypres league, and was leading man with Lily Langtry. Captain Bland also played the part of Christus in the world-famous film, "From Manger to Cross," which was produced in Palestine. This was the first film to be shown in Albert Hall, London. He has published many volumes of verse, his last being "Mirrored Heart," and selections from his, and from the works of other poets, will be heard in the new series.

JAMES J. MONTAGUE, poet and humorist, whose syndicated column, "More Truth Than Poetry," is enjoyed by millions of newspaper readers throughout the United States and Canada, will make his debut before an NBC microphone today in a new program series of the same title to be heard over an NBC-WJZ network from 2 to 2:15 p. m.

Mr. Montague, whose verse and paragraphs are as widely quoted as those of any living newspaper poet, will be heard daily, except Sundays, after the initial broadcast today.

Optimism as to the long-pull possibilities for the radio industry, although warning against any assumption that recovery will be encompassed within a few months, will be the keynote of a statement to be released at the opening of the RMA Trade Show in Chicago today by George K. Throckmorton, president of the E. T. Cunningham radio tube organization. As to when radio may expect to witness a forward movement of major proportions, Mr. Throckmorton will predict the coming fall to witness the start of renewed activity on a national scale with gradually increasing momentum for the remainder of the year and extending into late spring.

U. S. INDUSTRIAL HEADS URGED TO REASSEMBLE

BOSTON, June 7.—(AP)—President Hoover today was called upon by the Boston Central Labor Union to reassemble immediately the labor and industrial leaders of the country to determine what they have accomplished toward restoring prosperity since their conference at Washington in November, 1929.

The same resolution urged results of the suggested conference be made public. The resolution recalled the promise of industrial leaders not to reduce wages or decrease workers and the promise of labor leaders to prevent strikes.

MOSLEY DENIES COPYING ADOLPH HITLER'S WAYS

LONDON, June 7.—(AP)—Sir Oswald Mosley, who recently announced formation of a "strong-arm squad" to deal with those who interrupt meetings of the "new party" which he heads, today denied reports that two members of his group had visited Germany to study methods of Adolf Hitler, nationalist socialist leader.

"The story is quite untrue," Mosley declared. "Two members of the party went to Germany on a holiday at their own expense. One of them had business connections in Germany."

LEWIS DEFENDS SUIT AGAINST BANK AGENT

Disclaiming any intention of "trying their case in the public press," but insisting that the affairs of the state banking department are matters of public interest, counsel for plaintiffs seeking to restrain the department from further activity in the case of the closed Bank of Bremen, Ga., Sunday issued a statement defending their position in the case.

Roy Lewis, attorney for W. B. Williamson and other plaintiffs in the case, issued the statement Sunday following vigorous denial of so-called "bleeding" of the closed Bremen bank. In it the plaintiff's counsel takes exception to the allegations of state banking officials that the "bleeding" charges were "ridiculously absurd."

"Nothing is further from the truth than the intimation in the statement purporting to come from some authorized spokesman for the state banking department in the Sunday morning edition of The Atlanta Constitution, in which it is assumed that the plaintiffs and their counsel are seeking by 'sensational attack' to try their case in the public press rather than in the courts.

"The suit was filed in the regular manner, and Judge Humphries granted the temporary injunction upon the allegations of the petition duly verified by the affidavit of one of the plaintiffs. It is a public document, to which all persons have access. The Constitution regarded it as news, and published such portions of it as it saw fit.

"Apparently it is news, to which the public is entitled, judged by comments made to me since this publication. The actings and doing of the state banking department are the public's business, and not a private enterprise conducted for the benefit of the personnel of this department or its friends. The sensitive gentleman, who feels aggrieved that this matter has attained publicity, and who always conducts 'such litigation as was necessary in the court' apparently has seen fit to file his plea and answer to this suit in the columns of The Constitution rather than in Fulton superior court, and the admissions therein seem to justify most, if not all, of the allegations in the petition.

"Neither the plaintiffs nor their counsel have any influence, much less control, over the columns of any newspaper, and therefore cannot claim any credit for the true artistry of journalistic expression used by The Constitution in describing the suit as charging the 'bleeding of closed bank's resources.'

"According to the banking department statement the financial status of this bank never justified a liquidation by this department, and now that all of the creditors admittedly have been paid, certainly does not warrant its further incarceration in the custody of this benevolent department of our state.

"It is noted with interest that Mr. Mangham now intends to serve as liquidating agent during the ensuing indefinite time of liquidation without compensation.

"This is indeed a surprise, as we could only judge his future conduct by his past. This bank, like others, in March, 1929, was indisposed from frozen assets. Its illness was in mild form, and could have been cured by home remedies administered in neighborly fashion by the people of Haralson county, but instead it suffered a 'bloody' major operation.

"We desire no further publicity in this matter, and I intend to try out this suit on its merits in the court house, just as I have all other suits, in which I have been employed, during the past 33 years."

HIGHLIGHTS OF WALL STREET

By CHARLES W. STORM,
Editor, the News Service of Wall Street.

NEW YORK, June 7.—The stock market Saturday in showing general heaviness was a distinct disappointment to the constructive side. The general list had been expected to manifest stabilization, but ran into a substantial volume of professional selling coincident with the announcement of the demands by Germany for the suspension of reparations payments.

Important banking interests have maintained all along that the declaration of a moratorium on reparations payments by Germany would be a constructive development in the financial structure of the world, but the professional stock market traders seized upon the news as an excuse for offering stocks at concessions in prices.

This selling also reflected an effort on the part of the professional bears to test the stability of the list. These traders were also helped by reports that the statement of unfilled tonnage for May, to be issued by the United States Steel Corporation on Wednesday, would show a reduction of from 250,000 to 300,000 tons.

Big Bulls Confident.

Notwithstanding the declines of from two to three points in the pivotal issues, the big people on the constructive side adhere to their belief that the worst has been seen in the stock market and that recovery has begun.

These constructionists declare that the suspension of reparations payments would not prove to be a depressing influence in the long run, but add that the declaration of a moratorium by Germany on commercial obligations would be decidedly unfavorable throughout the world.

Announcement of a moratorium on German commercial obligations, however, is not expected, and therefore should not be considered as a factor in the stock market at this time.

Battle In Case Over.

The battle between two big market operators in J. I. Case Threshing Machine, which has been going on for three days, is declared to have been concluded. The prominent operator who had been active on the long side and who was responsible largely for the sharp rise in the issue and the running in of many shorts, is understood to have given up and disposed of his long holding, leaving the bear in full control.

Just what caused the bulls' retreat cannot be learned, but coincident with his desertion, rumors were current that the Case company planned to curtail operations in its plants to prevent increasing the inventory which is declared to be large.

Price fluctuations in Case stock were less erratic at the short session of Saturday and closed with a net loss of more than a point. The turnover in the stock was also greatly reduced for the two hours.

Steel Operations Up.

Little or no attention was paid by the bears to the prediction that the operations of steel plants in the Youngstown district for the coming week would be increased 1 per cent. This will be the first increase reported in 13 weeks.

Railroad shares that had been strong features during the rally sold off with the industrials Saturday. Further progress in the formulation of rate schedules was reported, and it was stated that the roads would have to get a 15 per cent increase in rates to accomplish a 10 per cent advance in net.

A number of constructive groups, which had planned to undertake operations in certain stocks with the beginning of the new week, will now delay putting their plans into effect owing to the disappointing action Saturday. The operation, however, which has been going on for months in Woolworth will continue owing to the fact that important developments in connection with new financing by the British company are expected to be announced shortly.

Investment banking houses and large brokerage houses report that there is plenty of money seeking investment pending stabilization of stock prices. The recent rebound in the market was so sharp that many prospective investors failed to take advantage of the low levels.

Yields on good stocks are unusually attractive as indicated by an analysis just issued by Moody's Investment Service which shows that the drastic decline in prices last month resulted in an increase of from 8.58 per cent to 9.71 per cent in the average yield on 340 active cash dividend-paying common stocks listed on the exchange.

A further reaction in the stock market is expected to bring in a substantial portion of those investors who missed their market the last week.

Hot, Dry Weather To Stay All Week, Forecaster Says

Citizens will swelter today if C. F. von Herrmann, United States meteorologist in Atlanta, is correct in his prognostications. He has predicted fair and warmer weather for the balance of the week, with the temperature ranging between the 70s and the 90s. Although the days will be a little more than comfortably warm, the nights will remain cool, according to the reports.

Rainfall is not expected in any quantity this week, which will worry the farmers not a little. It has been reported from most of the produce areas that crops will suffer unless they get considerably more rain in the next few weeks than they have had in the past few.

LEAGUE OF VOTERS HEARS NEILL TODAY

W. Cecil Neill, president of the state senate, will deliver the principal address before the men's council of the Atlanta League of Women Voters at 12:30 o'clock today at the Piedmont hotel. Mr. Neill is expected to discuss the league's proposed registration bill which would provide a permanent registration at one place for all elections.

Governor L. G. Hardman, Governor-elect Richard B. Russell Jr., chairmen of the state, county and city democratic executive committees, all county and city officials and DeKalb and Fulton legislators have been invited to attend the men's council and hear President Neill speak.

RISE BRIGHTENS CURB OUTLOOK

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—Curb stocks assumed a brighter hue last week when a sudden upturn halted a three months steady decline.

While attributed principally to an oversold condition, the reversal of trend was a welcome tonic to sentiment and was reflected in sharp gains in all sections of the list.

The week was divided into three distinct phases. It opened with two days on which the shares sunk to new lows for recent years. The decline was followed on Wednesday by an about face in which advances were the best in many weeks although not comparable with those on the big board.

The rally continued through the following session, but was checked in the closing two days of the week by extensive profit-taking. Nevertheless the general price level at the start of the new week is considerably above the year's lows.

The decision of the department of justice not to continue its opposition to the Vacuum-Standard of New York oil merger provided important impetus to the turn. From its year's low of 23 Vacuum soared spectacularly after the news was out and the bullish interpretation placed upon the government's action brought welcome relief to the much harassed oil shares. At the rise spread throughout the list, it sent apprehensive shorts scurrying to cover.

National Steel Corporation has started rebuilding a 10-inch strip mill at its Weirton (W. Va.) plant, with a capacity of 10,000 tons a month, into a combination mill. It will be able to roll 7,000 to 8,000 tons a month of small merchant bars of 1 to 1½-inch size, small angles and shapes, without affecting its efficiency for rolling strip. The mill will start rolling again July 1.

Business Holds Spring Gains Despite Summer Slackness

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER.

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—Business is working along toward summer with seasonal recessions still in progress, although so far the spring gains in virtually all lines have not been lost.

The most encouraging development of the past week was, of course, the turn in the security markets, an event warmly welcomed as an antidote for the excessive pessimism which was holding back buying of goods and doubtless exaggerating fears for the future. It was admitted, nevertheless, that the business background itself contributed nothing to the rise of stocks.

Tariff discussions are becoming more and more prominent. This topic, which came up at the recent meeting of the Foreign Trade Council, returned to the news early last week when the upward revisions in Canadian duties on many American products were announced. The effect of this increase remains to be seen; in the recent past there has been a tendency among American producers to sidestep tariff walls by building plants in the countries which erected such barriers.

The long decline in stocks had induced a pessimism that had been felt in many lines of industry. Buying of steel has continued on a hand-to-mouth basis because consumers were unwilling to commit themselves beyond the absolute minimums of current requirements. Trade circles believe, however, that the deferring of needs means a quick revival from the summer low which is generally expected in July.

Weakness of commodity prices contributes substantially to unsettlement. Copper, dropping to the record low of 8 cents, is apparently faced with a slow domestic demand for several weeks and although producers are unwilling to sell at so low a quotation the difficulty of moving stocks leads to the suggestion that some of the higher cost units may decide on a temporary shutdown.

Freight loadings for the week ended May 23 made a gain but it was less than seasonal. May earnings of the railroads are not expected to be particularly encouraging, and hope of much improvement has been postponed until the crop movement is reflected in the income statements. The move for higher freight rates was expanded and accelerated by the plans for a general conference on this subject among eastern, western and southern executives.

Retail business is moving into the seasonal reaction, with wholesale and jobbing trade considerably behind it at present. Efforts to draw out the consumer's dollar by means of sales are reported from many sections.

Automobile production in May was lower for the first time since December, but the decline had been expected in view of the satisfactory extent of the spring upturn and a lower rate of operations late in the month. Building is doing reasonably well, although activity in this industry in most districts is under a year ago.

U. S. ISSUE CENTER OF BOND INTEREST

BY ALEXANDER HENDERSON.

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—The most significant event affecting the bond market last week was the offering and the large oversubscription of the $800,000,000 issue of treasury bonds.

The popularity of the issue was assured from the time its terms became public but some bankers at least did not expect the subscriptions for it would exceed $6,000,000,000—evidence of the huge amount of idle funds awaiting investment.

Large blocks of certificates of indebtedness and bills mature in July and August and it is possible the government may undertake further long term financing to provide for their redemption. The success of last week's offering leaves no doubt that the treasury will be able to sell additional securities if the deficit makes such action necessary.

Another event in which Wall Street was interested was the application by the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway for permission to issue $18,316,000 of bonds whose proceeds would be used for refunding maturing issues and improving the company's cash position. Some such news had been anticipated because of rising prices in the outstanding issues of this carrier of both early and distant maturities. Net gains in the road's bonds ranged upward to 10 5-8 points.

The movement of prices generally indicated that the preference of the investing public was still for gilt edge or at least high grade obligations. Prices advanced through the middle of the week but a subsequent reaction was sufficient to wipe out most of the gains. The high grade issues as a rule were steady.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON FLUCTUATES WIDELY

NEW ORLEANS, June 7.—(AP)—Trading in cotton has been active all through the past week and price fluctuations have been wide and decidedly erratic. After declining 39 to 41 points from the close of the previous week prices reached new low levels for the season on Tuesday with October at 8.59 and December at 8.81. This decline was due to weakness in the stock market and selling based on the more favorable weather in the interior which caused improvement in crop prospects.

As New York had advanced about 30 points on Wednesday while the market here was closed owing to the Confederate Memorial holiday, prices experienced a sharp upturn on Thursday partly in the way of adjustment with the advance of the previous day in New York and partly owing to the sharp rally in stocks. Before the covering by shorts and other buying subsided the market had rallied 61 to 66 points from the lows.

A reaction in stocks during the two closing days of the week and continued good weather in the belt coupled with a long distance forecast for favorable weather conditions during the coming week caused heavy liquidation and considerable selling by ring traders and the bulk of the previous recovery was lost, prices dropping almost to the low levels reached early in the week.

	High.	Low.	Close.	Last Year.
July	8.84	8.27	8.31	15.25
October	9.20	8.59	8.64	14.03
December	9.58	8.81	8.88	14.13
January	9.47	8.97	9.00	14.15
March	9.74	9.19	9.20	14.31

Boy Burglar Escapes New York Officials

NEW YORK, June 7.—(AP)—William Soslofsky, 13, of Hicksville, L. I., who police say confessed to 50 burglaries in New York and Los Angeles, was sought today following his escape from the Children's Society's shelter.

Officers accused the boy of 20 burglaries in New York and 30 in Los Angeles within three months.

They said he confessed burglarizing the apartment of Patrolman William Perkins in the Bronx as well as 19 other burglaries in Manhattan and the Bronx.

With a companion the boy went to Los Angeles, where the list of burglaries was halted by the shooting of the companion, said now to be recovering in a Los Angeles hospital.

Wall Street Briefs.

NEW YORK, June 7.—New municipal and state financing scheduled for award this week totals only $22,189,989 and represent the needs of 64 communities, the Bond Buyer reports. The figure compares with $34,449,316 last week and the weekly average of $40,076,810 for the year to date. Among the awards scheduled are $4,000,000 veterans' welfare bonds and $202,000 state park bonds by the state of California on Thursday. The city of Paterson, N. J., is offering $1,800,000 tax revenue obligations on the same day.

MANY CHANGES ASKED IN INVESTMENT TRUSTS

CHICAGO, June 7.—(AP)—A report recommending drastic changes in the operation of investment trusts, was made public today by the Investment Bankers' Association of America.

Adopted at the association's May meeting in White Sulphur Springs, Va., the report stressed the necessity of "taking the public into its confidence" on the exact financial status and practices of each trust.

It specified, for the management type, that the regular reports give complete information about the financial position "as well as a clear statement of operations."

"In particular," it asserted, "the annual report should contain a complete statement of the investments held in the portfolio of the trust. Stockholders and prospective stockholders have a right to know in exactly what securities the management of the investment trust has invested its funds. In order that this may be accomplished, the list of securities should give the names and amounts of each security.

"Security should be carried on the balance sheet at cost, and it is recommended that costs be computed on an average basis. It is desirable that the total market value of securities be given in the report in order that stockholders may be able to determine the actual liquidating value of their shares, or preferably this liquidating value should be stated in a table supplementing the income statement.

"The amount of the unrealized losses or depreciation, if any, of the portfolio should be clearly stated. If reserves are set up against unrealized losses or for other reasons, the nature and purpose of these reserves should be indicated with a statement as to whether they were created out of income or out of surplus, either earned or paid in."

BRADSTREET'S WEEKLY BANK CLEARINGS

Bank clearings at leading cities last week, as reported to Bradstreet's gained sharply over the previous week, despite the shorter week. Endurance Davis 'All Set' For Gruelling 127-Hour Test

Reporting himself in the best condition of his entire career, Endurance Davis is ready to start his attempt to establish a new world's record for endurance driving from The Constitution office at 10 o'clock this morning.

All day Sunday men were kept busy with the final arrangements for this gruelling test of man and car, nothing being left undone that might stand in the way of success for Endurance Davis and the car.

Officials of the East Point Chevrolet Company, who are supplying the car, say that no special equipment has been put on it. It is a stock car in every respect and will be on display immediately following the finish of the drive next Saturday, where inspections are invited, they stated.

The run in Atlanta will be for 127 hours, the longest single drive ever attempted, and the contract calls for completion of the run, unless an accident disables the car. This is not considered probable, as Endurance Davis is considered one of the safest stunt drivers in the country, having run many successful endurance tests without an accident.

Test On Car and Man.

Few people realize just what a strain such a test imposes on man and car. The rules say that at no time shall the motor of the car be shut off, and the car must be kept moving at all times, except when caught by a traffic light or a traffic jam. To insure this, even for refueling, arrangements have been made with Wellborn Hope, Inc., local distributors for Shell Oil products, to fill the tank of the car while it is in motion. The motor and radiator will be sealed. No oil or water will be added during the run.

Endurance Davis states that with the good roads around Atlanta, he believes he can set up a new mileage record for continuous driving. If he is successful this will bring additional publicity to Atlanta and this section of the country.

Davis will have many of the conveniences of home in his car, chief among which is the Philco Transitone radio. This automobile radio set is a real engineering achievement, providing in an automobile the same reception available through a large home set. Vibration resulting from driving over rough streets has no affect on the tone or volume. Philco Transitone Automobile Radio sets are distributed in Atlanta by the Brown Tire Company, which concern installed the one on Endurance Davis' car.

Special horns have been installed—the new Trico Calaeron and the Bosch. Both are distributed in Atlanta through the Auto Electric Magneto Company.

Davis to Eat on Run.

Pig'n Whistle will see that Endurance Davis gets the proper things to eat, and, of course, will introduce him to one of their famous steak sandwiches. Pig'n Whistle probably feeds as many Atlantans each week as any other single organization. Their selection was a natural one because of the "drive-in" feature. Endurance Davis will get his meals on the run.

Nothing but the best could be put on the wheels, so Sears, Roebuck & Company has equipped the car with its famous "All State" heavy-duty tires. Heavy-duty tires were selected because of the hot weather Atlanta has been experiencing during the last few days.

Endurance Davis will be supplied with the purest milk obtainable. W. O. Pierce, who handles certified grade "A" milk, will see that he is supplied with this food value drink at regular intervals.

The Stone Baking Company, makers of the famous Oboy Bread, has agreed to see that nothing will be lacking in his bread or cake diet. Fresh bread will be one of the main dishes of Endurance Davis for the week.

Special Sun Glasses.

Special glasses have been fitted for this drive by the J. H. Keen Optical Company. Sun glasses are especially desirable in the hot summer sun.

The Taylor Drug Company will see that proper medicines and rubbing lotions are furnished to Endurance Davis. This popular drug company will be an important factor on about the fourth day of the run, when muscles begin to get stiff.

The Primrose Dry Cleaning Company, representing Atlanta's modern dry cleaning establishments, also is interested in the run, and as a special attraction for the week is offering two-for-one rates on work done in their plants.

At the finish of the run it will be necessary to carry Endurance Davis away on a stretcher, and this responsibility will fall on the shoulders of the Awtry & Lowndes Company, one of Atlanta's best known firms of morticians.

WILLYS-OVERLAND DISTRIBUTORS MEET

N. A. Beardsley, Eastern Division Sales Manager, Will Conduct Session.

N. A. BEARDSLEY.

Charlotte, Chattanooga, Knoxville, Birmingham, Jacksonville, Miami, New Orleans and Jackson, Miss., will be in Atlanta today for their annual mid-year sales session, directed by N. A. Beardsley, general sales manager of the eastern division. The visiting distributors of the Toledo motor car manufacturer will hold their business session in the Henry Grady hotel.

During the session Mr. Beardsley, who is recognized as one of the outstanding sales executives in the automobile industry, will discuss the sales campaign of the first six months of the year and will outline the aggressive plans developed for the last half.

"We selected Atlanta for this meeting because it is ideally located and easily accessible to each of our distributors in this section," Mr. Beardsley said in an interview. "It is gratifying to note that the sale of Willys-Overland products throughout this territory has been satisfactory in the first five months, and it is not unsound to take this as a barometer indicating steady pickup in all lines of business.

"Of course none of us in any business expect a meteoric rise to normal conditions, but rather a continued, steady upward trend, which, after all, is the soundest.

"There is no mistaking the fact that this is the greatest year of automobile values the nation has ever witnessed. Willys-Overland has gone on the theory that if outstanding values are presented the public, even during periods of curtailed buying, a good sales volume will result.

"The splendid reception accorded our entire line of Willys sixes and eights, Willys-Knights and our commercial cars and trucks, is evidence that the public will buy where they receive maximum value for their dollar.

"The remarkable performance records of our low-priced Willys Six, combined with its style, quality and wide range of color combinations to suit almost every individual taste, has provided an excellent sales stimulus for this model. Its ability to establish five new American stock car speed records recently at Muroc Dry Lake, Cal., under official supervision of the A. A. A.; breaking the former record for the climb up Mount Baldy, in California; finishing first and second in the annual Pikes Peak stock car race and also taking first and second places in the annual mountain race from Mexico City to Puebla have placed it in a position of leadership in the field of low-priced sixes."
